Leopoldville Declared 'Neutral City'

TANANARIVE, Malagasy Republic (Reuters) — Congolese leaders Friday night decided Leopoldville should become "a neutral city."

The announcement on the Congolese capital was made after a marathon session of Congolese factions meeting on this island republic. Observers said the Congolese leaders could be paving the way to make Leopoldville the capital of an eventual Congolese federation, holding no loyalties to any of the country's provinces or regions.

CABLE TO DAG

The spokesman also announced that the conference has cabled United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld expressing "surprise and indignation" at the decision to send nearly 5,000 Indian troops to the Congo. India offered the troops.

The cable said the UN move was made "despite our request of two days ago to the United Nations not to take any decisions on start implementing decisions in the Congo until the Tananarive conference ends."

LOOSE GROUP

The decision to make Leopoldville a "neutral city" was taken amid reports that plans are already taking shape at the conference for a loose federation of independent Congolese states along the lines long urged by President Joseph Kasavubu.

Sources said the conference has even got around to discussing a suggested name for the Community of Congolese States.

Canadians Too White

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Dag Hammarskjöld isn't pointing the finger at Canada when he asks for more troops for the United Nations Congo force.

The UN secretary-general has said the force must be increased to 25,000 men to keep going but, as far as can be learned, he isn't looking to such "white" countries as Canada for additions.

Ports' Return Hinted

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Strained relations between the United Nations and the Congo improved so sharply yesterday the Congolese hinted they might accept a compromise on returning the captured UN supply ports of Banana and Matadi.

But they left the final decision to President Joseph Kasavubu, now in Madagascar for a meeting of anti-Lumumbist leaders of the Congo. The Congolese army seized the ports last weekend in a clash with UN forces stationed there.

ANOTHER SIGN

"Another sign of a thaw was a turnout of an honor guard when special UN representative Rajeshwar Dayal left Leopoldville for New York and a general assembly debate on the Congo. He is expected to return in about two weeks.

The Congolese turned out their smartest troops when Dayal and his interim replacement, Mekki Abbas of Sudan, called on the acting premier, Jacques Massa. The UN command assumed the honors were for Dayal but the Congolese said the tribute was for Abbas.

UNDER ATTACK

Dayal has been under constant attack by the Congolese government for alleged favoritism to pro-Lumumba forces. Kasavubu has demanded his recall but Secretary Dag Hammarskjöld rejected the demand. Dayal said his final talks with Massa were "very friendly."

Health Care In '62

REGINA (CP) — The target date for introducing a provincial medical care plan still stands and it will be in operation "sometime in 1962," Premier T. C. Douglas said Friday in the legislature.

Target date to receive the medical care committee report and bring in legislation is set for 1961, the premier said. The medical care committee last month ended public hearings. Members now are studying state medicine plans in Europe and Australia and New Zealand.

$240,000 Find Turned In

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A middle-aged man in search of a job yesterday discovered $240,000 in unmarked bills lying in the street, but didn't hesitate a moment before turning the cash over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The FBI quoted Douglas Johnson as saying: "I thought if I kept that money, I'd never be able to look my three kids in the face again."

"And I'd do the same thing again," Johnson said, though it still wasn't certain whether he would receive a reward.

A bag containing the money tumbled through the open door of a Brinks armored car minutes after it was picked up at the United California Bank on a regular run.

Johnson, 50, and his wife, Helen, saw the bag lying in the street.

"I'm no richer now than when I started out this morning," the Negro father of three children said.

Cut Bombast On Africa John D Told

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Socialist leader Hazen Argue said last night Prime Minister John Diefenbaker should "cut out the bombast" and state flatly that Canada opposes the reentry of South Africa to the Commonwealth.

He said Diefenbaker was "cheapening the name of Canada" by talking about a Commonwealth bill of rights at the same time as he searches for a compromise to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

DON'T go to this movie if you are squeamish. Some people walked out of the theatre in five minutes.

But "Hiroshima Mon Amour," award-winning French film now in its last day at the Plaza Theatre, Victoria, is a good film for grown-ups who have strong stomachs.

A Frenchwoman, visiting Hiroshima to act in a peace propaganda movie, is strongly attracted to a Japanese whom she meets on the eve of her return to Paris.

Both of them are haunted by terrors from the past—for him, the atomic bomb, which she tries vainly to understand; for her, the day when she watched her German lover die slowly from a bullet wound, and suffered disgrace as a collaborator.

She identifies the Japanese with her dead lover. They find some comfort in each other's arms, and try to decide whether they should stay together.

That's all I will tell you about the narrative. Past and present are tied deftly together by the camera—the lovers, the burned people with skin and flesh sloughing off, the hands of a girl clawing at the walls of a cellar.

It's a tough, sensitive work that deals with violence and love. It keeps you wound up from beginning to end. See it, if you can stand it. But don't blame me if you have nightmares.

Peter Bruton reports that native Indians have forgotten how to speak Chinook.

The Nass River delegation to Victoria was baffled, he said, when Ned DeBeck, clerk of the legislature, spoke to them in fluent Chinook—a jargon once used by all west coast Indians from California north to Alaska.

"Trouble was," Peter said, "that the Indians had been educated by the white man. Not one of them could understand Chinook."

But my colleague isn't being fair to the Indians. His item implies that the Indians have forgotten their own language. This isn't so, Chinook, which Peter rightly calls a "jargon," never was the mother tongue of an Indian tribe.

It was a sort of mixed-up trade language, used for communication among tribes and between Indians and whites.

An analysis of the jargon in 1894 showed that 570 of its words were English, 153 French, 23 Nootka, 138 other languages and 198 words from the original Chinook language spoken at the mouth of the Columbia River.

Chinook was a language that Indian tribes spoke in addition to their own. Now—except among some old-timers, Indian and white—Chinook has died out.

English has become the common language, but the old tribal tongues still are spoken. One day, perhaps they will die. I hope not. A language is a key to many treasures. When it is lost, the treasures are lost too.

Term 'Heart Failure' Most Misunderstood

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between heart failure and a heart attack?" —Mrs. R. J.

Heart failure remains one of the most misunderstood terms concerning our health.

I'd guess that at least nine out of 10 people think that "heart failure" means that the heart suddenly stops beating.

That isn't the idea at all. The term really means much the same thing as when we speak of a person being in failing health.

The person in failing health may, with proper treatment, be brought back to active health. Or—let's face facts—a person with some ailment that is beyond cure may still continue in failing health or delicate health or whatever you want to call it, for a good many years.

Heart failure falls in this same category. The heart muscle itself has been weakened as a result of one form or another of heart disease, and no longer can pump as strongly as desired.

This is the case in some forms of angina pectoris. Use of nitroglycerin tablets, as needed, gives the heart a "lift," and relieves the pain in this form of trouble.

In some instances a faulty heart valve is the cause, and surgery has corrected many of these.

Again, the muscle may be damaged by a coronary thrombosis or heart attack, meaning that a branch of the artery feeding the heart muscle has become plugged and its blood flow shut off. Depending on the severity of this, the heart muscle may, and in innumerable instances, may not—be damaged to the extent of causing "failure."

The term heart attack may be used for several things. Primarily, I should say, it applies to a coronary thrombosis, such as we have just discussed briefly.

But the term is sometimes used for the onslaught of pain in angina pectoris, and sometimes for a sudden disorder in the heart's rhythm.

So, you see, heart attack is not an exact term, either in precisely what it denotes or in the severity.

Nor is heart failure, which does not necessarily indicate imminent disaster. But it does mean that understanding and care are essential.

More Test Flights Planned Before Hydrofoil in Service

Hydrofoil ferry Flying Fish made another two or three visits to Victoria to show guests how she "flies" before starting regular service March 16, an operating company officials said yesterday.

D. Murray Mason, general manager of the Hydrofoil Development and Operating Corp., said no real damage was done on the return trip to Bellingham Thursday when, in a rough sea, the skipper cut power in a trough and a wave "came right over the top of the cabin."

Two front corner windows were pushed in and water poured through, he said, but the panes were not smashed and have been put back in place.

"The skipper had been surfing the waves and doing quite a job," Mr. Mason said, but after that, the Flying Fish

$5,000,000 for PGE

asked if it was not true that Mr. Gibson had loaned some money to the firm.
"Yes, that's true," said Mr. Gibson. "It was $7,000 but it was well protected and I was repaid."

As Mr. Gibson was speaking the premier resumed his seat. Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz said he was warning members that if they took their seats they could not speak in the debate again.

"Mine's finished," retorted Premier Bennett hotly.
"Yes, I'd duck that hard question about the Laird company," too," said an opposition member.

FOR THE BILL.
CCF leader Robert Strachan said his group was for the bill because it had never opposed any legislation concerning the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

But he criticized the title of the bill which infers that the money for the PGE is being advanced by the province only until Ottawa paid a share of the construction costs under the same grant schedule as paid to other railroads.

The opposition has consistently stated that Ottawa has never promised such a grant to the PGE.

EAT CROW
Mr. Strachan said the title of the Bill should rather have been "A bill to enable the premier to eat crow," or "A bill to enable tax dollars to be used to keep the PGE going."

"We are very happy to vote for the bill because the PGE needs the money," said Mr. Strachan.

"We will always support the PGE even if it never makes a penny because of the service it gives the people of B.C. and the way it has opened up the north," he said. "But the government should be honest with the people and tell them how much it is going to cost them."

TWO ISSUES
Mr. Strachan said there were two issues regarding the bill:

● The responsibility of the federal government to give equal consideration to B.C.

● The government had kept the true financial situation of the PGE from the people for the past six years.

"This bill purports to commit the federal government to paying us this money—and the provincial legislature doesn't have that right," said the CCF leader. "It commits nothing but the legislature and the people to use tax dollars to keep the railway going."

Mr. Strachan said that if the CCF didn't vote for the bill the whole economic future of the province would be in jeopardy.

"It will pass without your vote," said Premier Bennett hotly.

UNANIMOUS
Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay) said the Liberals would also support the legislation and make the vote unanimous.

Mr. Macfarlane said he was disturbed over the preamble of the bill and that the real truth was that the legislature was voting to give $5,000,000 in tax money to keep the PGE going.

He urged the premier to bring in an amendment changing the preamble to signify this fact.

George Hobbs (CCF-Revelstoke) criticized the government for placing the railroad in the hands of non-professional executives and referred to the "general manager."

But he later said he was not referring to PGE general manager Joseph Broadbent but Einar Gunderson.

Premier Bennett said "this isn't good enough" and rose to a fighting defence of Mr. Broadbent. The situation ended in a shouting match across the floor and the premier was drawn to order by Mr. Speaker Shantz.

School Tax Total Same In Assessment Switch

Premier Bennett says legislation that will change the basis of property tax assessments will not mean a higher provincial total in school taxes.

Some areas will see taxes go up, some will see them go down, he said.

He made the comments as he introduced a bill for second reading. It would change assessment base to current actual property and land values instead of the estimated values in arbitrary base years of 1953 and 1955.

Under it, instead of paying taxes on 60 per cent of the base year estimated value, the taxpayer would pay on half the current actual value for land and 75 per cent of half the value of improvements, or 37½ per cent.

Pauline Johnson 'Dull and Void'

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 200 poetry lovers gathered Friday beneath the tall trees in Stanley Park to pay tribute to Indian poetess Pauline Johnson on the 100th anniversary of her birth.

While 10-year-old Allison White recited some of the poetess' best known lines near the spot where she is said to have written many of her verses, two UBC English language professors discounted the literary value of her work.

"I don't read her, I don't find her interesting, I don't consider her at all important in Canadian literature," said Prof. Earle Birney, himself a widely known poet, playwright and novelist.

Unfortunately her verses doesn't have much philosophical or intellectual content," said Prof. Reginald Watters.

None of Miss Johnson's work appears either in the R.C. centennial anthology, of which Prof. Watters was editor-in-chief or in a large collection of Canadian literature which he helped to compile.

"She has verve," he said. "She is certainly Canada's best Indian poet."

At the Stanley Park ceremony a cairn erected in honor of the poetess many years ago was rededicated. It marks the spot where her ashes were buried in 1913 following her death at 52.

Lucie Van de Mark and son ... fraud charges

WASHINGTON (UPI)

—The assistant attorney-general was winding up a hard day at the U.S. Justice department when the intercom speaker connected to the attorney-general's office came on with an imperious snap.

Burke Marshall, head of the civil rights division, braced for a command from his boss, Robert Kennedy. He heard an ominous rustling through the intercom and then recoiled at a childish yell:

WHAT'S YOURS?

"My name's Kathleen. What's your name?"

While Marshall was trying to collect his wits, another voice yelled at him from the speaker: "My name's David."

Marshall, rising to the occasion as an assistant attorney-general should, decided to play for time.

RIGHT ANSWER

"My name's Marshall. I have a daughter named Katherine."

That seemed to satisfy the voices from the boxes' office and the intercom snapped off. Just as Marshall was trying to guess how far the new frontier had extended, two moppets bearing a striking resemblance to the boss galloped past his door.

HARRIED NURSE

They were followed by two more, shrieking and laughing through the sombre halls. Bringing up the rear came a harried nursemaid.

The attorney-general's seven children had descended en masse upon the justice department.

In his office, President Kennedy's brother was trying to get a black tie straight to attend a formal dinner while his brood sought to scale him like a Jacob's ladder.

MISSION DONE

His wife Ethel was busily shoeing them off Daddy. While their attention was centred on the bewildered assistant, Mrs. Kennedy got the 35-year-old attorney-general's tie fixed.

The pitter-patter of little footsteps was heard throughout the building until the attorney-general left for the dinner and Mrs. Kennedy, the nursemaid and seven hooting children faded into the dusk.

Heavy Drama No Tool Of Canadian Players

By BERT BINNY
Theatre that is unusually produced but still admirably and refreshingly performed is being offered by the Canadian Players, who presented "The Tempest" and "The Caucasian Chalk Circle" at Oak Bay Junior High School yesterday.

"The Tempest," played in the afternoon, was a gem of imagination. Gone was all the atmosphere of heavy drama at one time associated with everything Shakespeare ever wrote.

Instead, the Canadian Players provided a colorful, skilful and thoroughly vital presentation. It was, indeed, very close to Christmas pantomime, with all the alluring assets of that type of production plus others peculiarly its own. Everything known about William Shakespeare suggests that this was the way he would have liked his "Tempest" played.

Bertold Brecht's "The Caucasian Chalk Circle" was presented last night and goes on again tonight at 8:15. Besides a being powerful drama, this play is different in that it employs a narrator and travels swiftly both through time and locales without change of scene. This apparently difficult task the Players accomplish effectively. It is as if the technique of the film is applied to the live theatre—successfully.

We Are No Longer Kids

BECAUSE in recent months the Diefenbaker government has criticized U.S. policy and in other ways has indicated that it is not prepared to play a servile role with its North American neighbor, Canadians as a whole are being castigated south of the border as indulging in anti-Americanism.

This is unfortunate, for as the president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, T. R. McLagan, said last week there is a wide difference between being pro-Canadian and anti-American.

It is just as natural to assume that every red-blooded Canadian is as much pro-Canadian as every U.S. citizen is pro-American. It is nothing of which to be ashamed.

Yet because Canada has declined to fall in line with the U.S. trade embargo with Cuba, and Finance Minister Fleming has taken tax steps to make it more profitable for U.S. firms to Canadianize their subsidiaries in the country, a hornet's nest has been raised.

The Chicago Sun-Times says Canada "is a nation of money grubbers." The New York Daily News, "Mr. Fleming should look for less irritating ways to taper off any economic injustices that exist." The New York Herald-Tribune says Canada is "starting to erect an ugly fence on our side of the border."

These views are unfair to Canada. Canadians seek only a fair economic break in business relations, and a right to have some control over their own destiny.

If there can be any doubt that Canada in the past has been made the victim of some very hard bargaining, the natural gas export business should dispel it.

When Westcoast Transmission sought to build a natural gas pipeline from northern B.C. to the lower mainland it applied to the U.S. for an export permit. The U.S. authorities were aware that Westcoast could not build the line economically for Canadian use alone, and, because they knew how vital the U.S. market was, they forced the Canadian company to sell the gas to the U.S. at a price that did not cover costs, and left the B.C. consumer with the invidious distinction of having to subsidize the whole operation.

These are the deals that the Canadian government should not allow to happen; and just because Ottawa is now seeking a more equitable arrangement, it should certainly not be interpreted as either a warlike, or even unfriendly attitude, to a more powerful neighbor.

All we want the Americans to understand is that we are now a nation of 18,000,000 people, and we are no longer kids.

The Public Is the Victim

OVER the past few years the CBC television program "Close-Up" has devoted itself exclusively to bringing sometimes pungent, oft-times thought-provoking—but always factual—reports on various aspects of national and international affairs and personalities to Canadian viewers.

Through its wide variety of subject matter and its undeniable contribution to the broader education of Canadians as a whole, coupled with its sincere approach and slick commentaries, "Close-Up" has achieved the enviable reputation of being this country's best home-produced program.

It would perhaps be the height of cynicism to suggest that such a goal could have been attained by any production unit if it worked on an apparently limitless budget which allowed its crews to visit all parts of the world from Ghana to the Riviera, from London to Havana, or from Rome to Hiroshima.

Yet such is the working program of "Close-Up" and on just such a wide field did it build its reputation.

And up until recently the reputation was well deserved—despite such costly flops as the proposed interview with Dr. Nkrumah which never came off, but resulted in the "Close-Up" crew kicking its heels in Ghana for days and even weeks.

However, this program's reputation today stands shattered. Twice in a period of a few short months "Close-Up" has bamboozled the public—either deliberately or otherwise—by presenting studies of two great national problems as fact when they were nothing but fiction.

The national problems still remain, perhaps even worsened by the program which professed to place the facts honestly before the public in an effort to bring forth a greater understanding of them.

This is a matter which cannot be laughed off or explained lightly away.

If "Close-Up" is no longer to be regarded as a fact-revealing program, if it is now to be looked upon as a sort of phony documentary of fiction dressed as fact, then the public should be told, for it is the public that foots the not inconsiderable bill.

A Shibolet Punctured

A BLOW has been struck at shamoletism in sport and in a place hitherto considered to be the acme of the so-called simon pure—the Wimbledon tennis tournaments. Next year the championships held there—still the prestige centre of world tennis—will be open to professionals and amateurs alike.

This should invite similar action elsewhere and possibly lead to the general opening up of all major international sports competitions of any kind.

There are few if any genuine amateurs left in the sporting realm; society has so changed that the days when athletes could afford to devote years to playing games at their own expense are substantially over. The shibolet of amateurism has been maintained, however, and primarily because of its snobbish aspect. As a result all kinds of dodges are resorted to so that players might be socially correct.

Actually the real bona fide athlete is the undisguised professional, who makes sport his career just as ballet dancers and musicians—also paid performers—follow their bent and natural skills.

Tennis particularly has been a realm wherein young men obviously of no financial means spend years travelling in style from one international court to another, mysteriously subsidized but presented as players untainted by anything so sordid as money. It has been a major instance of hypocrisy on a wide scale.

The illusion has been punctured of late by the simple circumstance that the best players of world tennis are now the unashamed professionals. In consequence the glitter of shamolet tennis has vanished and Wimbledon shows a refreshing frankness by throwing open its renowned annual tournaments.

Ability should be the criterion and it should not matter whether a competitor enters as a genuine amateur or as an acknowledged professional. Many countries in fact, non-English speaking, treat sports without any dividing line but that of proficiency and as a matter of normalcy use state funds in their promotion.

It will be all to the good of honesty and common sense if other countries follow the example of Wimbledon, and if this sounds the death-knell of shamoletism in other sports as well.

Interpreting the News

Moroccan Fragility

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

IF further proof were needed of the fragility of the situation in North Africa, the death of King Mohammed V of Morocco has provided it.

King Mohammed, a popular and charming man, used to say that all the tensions of his state were hidden behind his "jibba" or long Arab cloak. It is generally agreed that his son and successor, youthful Moulay Hassan, may not be as successful.

After Morocco became independent five years ago, the nationalist Istiglal party splintered into two sections of which perhaps the more powerful is the left-wing group headed by Ben Barka. The right wing is led by Allal el Fassi, a supporter of the monarchy.

With the stabilizing effect of King Mohammed removed, the possibility of a left-wing Moroccan republic moves a step nearer to reality.

Since independence Morocco has languished Casablanca is described as a ghost city. Restaurants have attentive waiters and shiny white napery, but no customers. Money, machinery and trained men are needed to modernize the state.

In isolation, Morocco's plight might be of interest only to Moroccans. But it has a wider significance in view of the grandiose plans to realize the old North African dream of a "maghreb" federation embracing Morocco, Tunisia, Algeria and possibly France.

Maghreb is Arab for west, in this case the west of the Arab world. President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, in his recent talks with General de Gaulle, is believed to have proposed a Mediterranean pact linking France with the three North African states.

France, it is thought, might find this an attractive package in which to wrap Algerian independence. But a leftward-leaning Morocco would hardly fit into the picture.

Morocco recently played host to the president of the Soviet Union, Leonid Brezhnev, and took delivery of the first consignment of 14 Russian jet fighters. Now that King Mohammed no longer rules, such developments assume a new significance.

A Dying Fall

Bitter-Sweet Memories

By CARMANDRA, from London

SOCIETY in 1961 seems to be turning away from its electronic computers, its automation, its plutonium, its rocketry and all the technical, brilliant bric-a-brac that makes up this anguished second half of the twentieth century.

People now turn back in affection to Edwardian and Victorian times. Gaslit lamposts rather than the telly "Hold-Control" are an object of reverence and aging householders in London Town band together in guerrilla groups to defend the old-fashioned beacon. Ancient chaps like the most lamented A. E. Matthews stood vigil by them.

The airship and the balloon—how I remember those pale blue oblongs and spheres rising up from Alexandra Palace decades ago and the sand descending like solid smoke from the gondolas—are commemorated in Lord Ventry and his brave Airship Club.

Steam engines are hallowed in the name of the "Bluebell Line," the "Talllyn Railway Preservation Society," and a swarm of kids at Paddington, Euston, Waterloo and all points West to carry on the tradition of red-hot coal and water and steam.

Veteran Car societies thrive—remember the Crossley, the Waverley, the Bean, the Swift and the Cubitt?

The majestic swan wings of the "Sailing Barge Preservation Society" still plume themselves near Galleon's Reach.

And now, newer than most and in some ways better than all, we have "The Paddle-Wheel Preservation Society."

Like steam-controlled swans they are dying and the splash-and the reverse splash-plush from their paddles hath a dying fall.

Needless to say, Mr. John Bejtman is a supporter of the Paddle-Wheel Preservation Society.

Nobody yawns more poetically and more nostalgically and more sweetly about the teak-and-muffin and foggy days that have so recently gone by.

Mr. Bejtman houns of the "windy, weedy platforms" and "the chuffs of the Great Northern train for Alexandra Palace bound."

He sees in the North-London heights of not so long ago upon the yellow, dusty privet hedge "the looping caterpillar... hanging in a gummy froth" and yawns and mourns and loves it all.

Ours is a generation that looks back not in anger but at the gloomy dishevelled, mean and most enjoyable bitter-sweetness of it all.

In the army during the last war there was a saying which a certain type of slightly exhibitionist commander used to revel in.

It was: "There are no bad soldiers in the Army—only bad officers." This easy aphorism was understandably popular with the other ranks who gave it a hearty "Hee, hee," accompanied by the usual four-letter embriology.

The maxim was not quite so well thought of in the officers' messes where the whole military flock was known to have included at least some black sheep at all levels.

The reverse of this theory was once expressed to me by a tremendously cheerful Charlie of a colonel in the Regular Army whose pet saying was: "If the officers are happy, the men are happy. Contentment flows downwards like wine. What are you having, dear boy?"

His jovial spirit lives on—in the American Army at least.

President Kennedy has just personally vetoed an expenditure of £71,400 for an extension to an Officers' Club in Europe.

Another Officers' Club in Britain recently purchased 12,000 golf balls under the Eisenhower Administration, while yet a third spartan establishment in Germany for the higher ranks bought a million bottles of beer.

There's nothing like roughing it to harlien the military man.

Reports From Ottawa

THE press gallery in the Commons is behind and above the Speaker's chair, and as an MP pointed out with some irritation the other day, this gives reporters a rather "Olympian" presence.

Be that as it may, this vantage point also gives the press a Speaker's eye view of events on the floor of the chamber. And generally speaking, my sympathies are with the Speaker. Any Speaker.

Currently Hon. Rollie Michener appears to be in need of sympathy from some quarter, for he doesn't seem to be getting much from the party that put him in the Speaker's chair.

I'm thinking of, but not referring solely to, the hour between noon and 1 p.m. last Friday when Mr. Speaker, trying to be fair and impartial, was harangued by Tory front benchers and back benchers because he proposed to accept a Liberal motion. I couldn't see Michener from where I sat, but MPs said later that he was shaking when it was over.

As presiding officer of the Commons, the Speaker is placed by his political former fellows on a pinnacle of fairness and impartiality whence he must try to carry out his duties forgetful of past and future political associations, interests and biases.

While he is by custom chosen unanimously by all members of the House, in fact he is selected and put forward as a candidate by the prime minister. And since his tenure of office is, with rare exceptions, for the life of one Parliament only, his future political career depends largely on the good will of the prime minister, assuming the re-election of the government.

In these circumstances it is disconcerting for a Speaker to sense government displeasure at his rulings, as when Diefenbaker and Finance Minister Fleming put their heads together in agitated whispering. Much worse is a government assault on his reasoning, as happened Friday when Diefenbaker, five cabinet ministers and three Tory backbenchers sought to dissuade Michener from allowing Liberal leader Pearson to move a motion intended to bring on an immediate debate on government policy concerning aid to surplus manpower areas.

Fleming lectured the Speaker, and warned him he was exceeding his authority. Firmly but tactfully Michener rejected the arguments of the angry finance minister and allowed the debate to proceed.

Except that Michener made a mistake in letting Diefenbaker argue against the proposed debate before Pearson had completed his argument for a debate, the Speaker's handling of the difficult hour was superb. The Tories were aggrieved, but only, I suspect, because Michener's firm impartiality was against their interests in a matter over which the government is hypersensitive.

Normally it is the opposition that tends to feel aggrieved over Michener's firm, nononsense control of the House. A day earlier, for example, he cut off, admonished or corrected 20 Opposition MPs including Pearson and CCF leader Argue, but only two Tory MPs.

With political feelings running higher this session than at any time since 1956, it is fortunate the Commons has a Speaker whose knowledge, tact, conscience and will have so far proven commensurate with his responsibility.

The Packback

He Taught Them to Bark

By GREGORY CLARK

CONSIDERING that we have been in two wars within the two overlapping generations, and that a total of a million Canadians in those two wars were submitted to the rigors of military discipline for fairly long periods of their best years, it is astonishing that so little of the severity of drill, of training, of the authority of sergeant-majors, and left-right, left-right, has rubbed off on us. The two wars have apparently made us more easygoing than ever in our social behavior. Even the police dare not adopt the sergeant-major tone with us.

With considerable interest I have been watching one of my former comrades who has been raising his four boys as though they were raw recruits. He is naturally a forceful and commanding character, and he has trained his sons to jump when he barks. Everything has gone wonderfully for fifteen years. The whole community has congratulated him on the way he has brought up his manly, obedient and dutiful brood.

But now that they are in their twenties, and huskier than their Dad, they are barking back at him. He taught them to bark. He showed them the tricks of mastery. And he is very grievous to find them so aggressive and assertive. It never occurs to him that they are his sons, as like him as five peas.

M.A. Status

Has a Hollow Ring

OXFORD UNIVERSITY recently debated a proposal to allow research students with a BA degree from a university other than Oxford to take the formal MA Oxon. degree instead of merely having "MA status" as at present.

The proposal was defeated. It has brought up nevertheless a point which is only one of a number of anomalies surrounding the whole question of MAAs and "MA status" at both Oxford and Cambridge.

In the first place the very term "MA status" has a rather hollow ring since the MA in both these universities is almost entirely a "status" symbol anyway. Unlike the practice in most universities, the MA Cantab. or Oxon is not a higher research degree, or indeed a degree with any academic value whatsoever.

At Cambridge it ceased to involve any actual academic study when the quadrivium went out with the beginning of the establishment of Triposes in the mid-18th century; since the Royal Commission on Oxford and Cambridge in 1923-26 the remaining vestiges of formality have been stripped away and it is now simply a degree for which one waits three years after taking the BA and pays a fee: £3 to the university plus a variable amount "according to one's college."

Would it be desirable to have an MA which actually meant something in terms of academic achievements as in other universities?

Most dons, including Mr. Noel Annan, Provost of King's, think this would be superfluous in Cambridge, because there are already three research degrees: the D.Phil., the M.Litt., and the M.Sc.

Having an MA (Cantab.), is therefore no more than being in an Old Boys' club although membership does carry certain rights. An MA has access to the university library, can vote in senate house, dine at High Table so many times a year and have some more strings on his gown.

Yet hundreds of Cambridge graduates take their MA every year (about 120 took it last week), many of whom are neither in a university teaching post nor planning to be in this sentiment, or just academic snobbery?

In view of the fact that an MA created under these circumstances is no more than a BA from the same university who is three years older and happens to have had five or six pounds in his pocket at the time, the distinction seems absurd.

The point debated at Oxford was a separate one, and has not yet become a live issue at Cambridge, although it has aroused some interest. MA status is granted automatically in Cambridge to any research student or teaching official provided he is over 27 and who is not eligible for the actual MA because he took his BA or MA somewhere else.

Curious Twilight

The Carrot And the Sick

By RICHARD LOWENTHAL

WITH the Soviets limbering up for their first major diplomatic encounters with President Kennedy's new administration, the international scene is bathed in a curious twilight. On one side, Mr. Khrushchev seems bent on demonstrating just how reckless he can be in exploiting international crises. He continues to supply arms to his partisans in Laos, as they are not restored to power. He has served notice that he will revive the Berlin issue this year. He insists on his right to back the Gizenga "government" in the Congo, regardless of what the UN may decide; and, worst of all, he has resumed his scurrilous attacks on Mr. Hammarskjöld.

At the same time the Soviets also indicate that they can be polite and diplomatic when they want to: though more critical of President Kennedy's policies than in the beginning, they still carefully refrain from direct and explicit insults against the new U.S. Administration, and seek to that extent to preserve an atmosphere for negotiation.

The most natural explanation of this paradox is that Russian tactics are not so much contradictory as two-sided—that they are a case of one of the oldest methods in the school of diplomacy: the simultaneous use of the carrot and the stick. The brinkmanship in Laos and the Congo, and the attacks on Mr. Hammarskjöld, are part of the stick-treatment, designed to show just how dangerous the continuation of the cold war might be. The polite language to the U.S. Administration is a foretaste of the carrot of peaceful co-existence that might be obtained by appropriate U.S. concessions.

This interpretation is strengthened by the information the Soviets have lately been passing to the West, and particularly to the Americans, through diplomatic channels or inspired leaks.

On one side they stress the seriousness of Mr. Khrushchev's desire to avoid nuclear war and end the arms race. On the other they use their serious difficulties with Peking to indicate they are under pressure by less peace-loving elements, and must produce tangible diplomatic successes to keep them quiet. Failing that, it is hinted, Mr. Khrushchev might yet be overthrown, or at least be forced to revise, at the party congress this autumn, his doctrine that world war is no longer inevitable.

Though I do not doubt the reality of Chinese discontent and its pressure on the Soviets, I am inclined to think that this particular stick is made of paper. Contrary to inspired rumors, there has been no real sign of opposition to Khrushchev in the Soviet leadership since his assumption of sole control more than three years ago; and the doctrine that nuclear war can and must be avoided is far too deeply anchored in the self-interest of the Soviet Union to be open to serious risk of revision.

Indeed, a careful study of all the Chinese documents on the issue for the past year, and beyond, has convinced me that even they never asserted the inevitability of world war, just as Khrushchev never asserted the possibility of a real settlement of the conflict with "the imperialist camp." The real dispute centred around the degree of permissible brinkmanship or permissible negotiation as well as on the extent of Soviet economic and military aid to China.

Yet, if some of these whispered dangers lack credibility, the stick wielded in public by Khrushchev's recent actions is real enough. By contrast, the carrots are tantalizingly distant. Nobody can be sure how nourishing they are, as nobody has been able to examine them closely. The danger of these tactics, in which the threats are real and made to appear exaggerated, while the hopes remain vague and general, is that they may encourage on the part of the West the very thing that Khrushchev wishes to avoid—a reliance on sticks alone.

The doctrine that it is useless to negotiate with the Soviets because strength is the only argument they understand has been the bane of Western policy during the crucial years of the post-Stalin succession crisis in Russia, and it has still many followers. Of course no diplomatic dealings with so powerful an opponent offer any hope without the backing of strength. But true diplomacy always required both stick and carrot—the credible proof of ability to cause damage to the other side if it acts recklessly, and the credible proof of willingness to offer advantages if it will impose agreed limits on its actions and ambitions.

As the Kennedy Administration gets ready for serious negotiations it will have to furnish both proofs. It must show its ability to frustrate gambles at the crisis points by counter actions backed by the necessary strength. But it must also offer a real inducement to less provocative and more cooperative behaviour, and it can do so only in the one field where both conflicting parties have an overwhelming common interest: the controlled limitation of armaments, and the reduction of the risk of nuclear war.

The need for such constructive effort does not depend on the doubtful assumption that otherwise Mr. Khrushchev might be replaced by a more dangerous man, or get into a more dangerous mood. He is bad enough in his present mood: Nor does it depend on the argument of appeasement—that because of the danger of something worse we cannot afford to resist when he threatens.

The real case for a bold, imaginative proposal in the field of limitation of nuclear risks is that in diplomacy, a credible inducement is as much of a trump card as a credible threat, and that the best and most credible inducement to an opponent is one which is manifestly in harmony with the vital interests of both sides.

Letters to the Editor

Working Wives

In the midst of discussions, plans, etc., of the brains of the country in an endeavor to solve the serious unemployment situation, may I be permitted to give a few common sense suggestions.

The dominion and provincial governments should take the first step by letting out working wives whose husbands earn a fair wage, and who leave their children at the mercy of cheap help thus adding to delinquency, and usually resulting in welfare responsibility.

Physically fit men and women in the 65-year class who are forced into retirement (many to a life of semi-starvation) should be given preference over married women (without children) whose husbands are in the salary bracket. Surely there is plenty of charitable voluntary work available for these energetic women.

If, however, so much money and consideration must be lavished on youth encouraging greed, surely the time has come for old age pensions to be paid at the age of 65 unless we want to forget the meaning of justice.

Despite the working wives contributing to the family revenue, never in our history was child delinquency, divorces, debt, and crime, etc., at such a high level.

No Grants

While the canvassing for the Red Cross is still in progress it should be known and stressed that a clause in its charter forbids any country's government grant to its funds, so that the Red Cross can only be supported by voluntary donations.

As a canvasser for it for many years I learned that many people did not know this, nor do they today I find.

(MRS.) ALICE COLCLOUGH.

Let's Keep It

I see that different people send you letters about Canada's new flag, which we have heard a lot about. My opinion is I would rather see it stay the way it is today. In 1914 our boys took the Union Jack, and the old Canadian flag with the coat of arms of every province and the Union Jack in the hoist, overseas with them. And again in 1939 our boys took the Canadian flag, which we fly today, overseas with them, and again in the Korean war.

Men have died fighting on foreign soil so that these two flags may fly over free soil. I am in the reserve army myself and I am proud of the flag which I serve under today. I say let's not change it, let's keep it the way it is. It has been fought for and won for us.

Open to Question

Your editorial reply to Mr. George Gregory's question as to the nature of Canada's defence policy is a welcome development, for it would appear that you are willing to discuss this important question in your columns, and out of discussion should come clarity.

That a growing number of Canadians are seriously questioning our defence policy is to be seen in the fact that it became the central issue at the Liberal convention, that the CCF national convention rejected NATO, and that the Voice of Women, which is opposed to nuclear arms in Canada, is growing rapidly.

Indeed, in my view, the sanity of a policy which calls for the spending of billions on arms in peacetime when there is mass unemployment (partly as a result of the arms race), when the UIC fund is going broke, when our social services and school needs are in crisis, is open to question.

Your editorial seems to express irritation because a man of Mr. Gregory's stature questions our defence policy. I say, good old George. The policy of all-out support for the U.S. inspired cold war, brinkmanship, H bomb diplomacy, and turning Canada into an expensive satellite might seem clear and simple to your editorial board, but many Canadians are beginning to think there is more logic in a policy of Canadian neutrality, nuclear disarmament and independence.

ERNEST L. KNOTT.

State Control

Modern statistics are richly spiced with contradiction. The sight of marching unemployed is in itself concrete proof of same. We read daily that we never were more prosperous, and the number of employed has increased. The peculiar twist then is why are the union "leaders" shedding their responsibility onto the shoulders of government?

Harsh as the term may sound, labor is the union leaders' responsibility, for it is their commodity in which they trade and so are in contact with all the great capitalists, and are fully aware of the intricacy of the giant monopolies. Why then do they not send the question of all unemployment that they have so persistently wooed, and bound, and are now obviously falling them, to the "heads" of the market to which they are supposed to cater?

Surely the union leaders know that what they are diligently attempting is a trap involving "state" control, through inveigling government into commitments involving—as always—the taxpayers. Government—in the interest of the latter—should be curbing the wild extravagance of their own stratum and the wastage generally that is so brazenly flaunted.

Union Clash Sparks 'Electric' Situation

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lawyer asked the courts Friday to do something to ease an "electric" situation at Tahsis caused by a jurisdictional dispute between two unions.

W. R. Mead, appearing for the Tahsis Co. Ltd. before Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker in supreme court chambers, said the company seeks an injunction to prohibit trespassing, mass picketing, acts of violence and intimidation "all of which is amply supported by material on file."

"The situation is electric and something must be done."

Mr. Mead said there has already been one case of assault and mass picketing has been organized at the dock, mill and storage area.

The case stems from a dispute between locals of the IWA and the International Longshoremen's Union. The Longshoremen want to displace the IWA as bargaining agent for 30 or 60 shiploaders at the lumber operation but have been turned down by a federal labor board.

The court was told the shiploaders revoked payment of dues to the IWA and were fired March 4 under the IWA company agreement which states employees must maintain good standing in the union. The shiploaders have picketed loading operations but other IWA members have loaded the ships.

Mr. Justice Whittaker refused to grant a longshoremen's injunction restraining anyone else as shiploaders and asking for reinstatement of the fired men.

Gets Lift

Story Twisted

Spoke God's Truth Says Weeping Wife

HAMILTON (CP) — Tired and crying, Mrs. Glen Exelby said Thursday night she would welcome a visit from Labor Minister Starr to tell him in person that the story of unemployment which she and her husband gave on television Tuesday night was the gospel truth.

She also accused everybody of twisting the story: "They all got everything wrong, including that man in Ottawa," referring to Mr. Starr.

Mrs. Exelby said their story on the CBC program Close-Up was "God's honest truth" and was told "to show the nation what the unemployed face."

"We also did it because they promised to pay us," she said. "It was the only way we could keep together as a family. We were broke."

Thursday, Mrs. Exelby said she, as well as her husband, was paid for the film. She said each received a $250 cheque.

Reds Disagree Over Space Plan

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet scientists disagreed Friday over whether the return of a dog-carrying space vehicle has cleared the way for man's great venture of orbiting the earth.

Prokofi Ivanchenko, doctor of biological sciences, said successful recoveries of the dog Blackie and two predecessors show the Soviets have solved the problem of cosmic radiation dangers.

DEFINITE FIRST

"The techniques of recovering space ships are no longer in the experimental stage," he said. "It can be said confidently a Soviet man will be the first astronaut."

However, several other scientists cautioned the successful recovery did not clear the way for human journeys.

NOT UNANIMOUS

Prof. Ivan Mainsky said "scientists are not yet unanimous in their conclusions on the effect of weightlessness on living organisms."

A Professor Dobronravov agreed with Ivanchenko that "the date of a manned flight is not far distant" but indicated more experimental space ships must be sent up first.

"To guarantee a safe return to earth of a cosmic ship carrying a man we still have to make several experiments of the ship's design itself and of the equipment of the cabins," Dobronravov said.

Reds Find Key to Prehistoric Age

LONDON (UPI) — A joint expedition by the academies of science of Soviet Russia and Communist China have discovered new species of prehistoric beasts in the Gobi Desert, known to scientists as the graveyard of the dinosaurs.

So far the Russians have discovered only bare details of the discoveries. British scientists said they hope more details will fill in the blank spots in the history of the vertebrates who roamed the earth long before the appearance of man.

The finds so far reported to the British include the complete skeleton of an anchilousaurus, a giant lizard 30 feet long (about three times the length of the previous largest skeleton of this species). It was found in the Ala Shan Desert in the heart of the Gobi.

The anchi-lousaurus waddled like armor-plated tanks through what apparently was a steamy jungle area 60,000,000 years ago. They must have appeared ferocious but apparently browsed on soft and succulent plants.

The Sino-Soviet scientists found in the same graveyard the remains of duck-billed dinosaurs which stood 32 feet tall on their hind legs. There were fragments of dinosaurs ranging from 10 to 14 feet high to a saurapod, a browsing dinosaur believed to be 100 feet long.

The expedition by the two Communist nations apparently was mounted on a scale unheard of in the West. Some 80 scientists spent seven months and covered 18,000 miles in Inner Mongolia and China.

A brief report published by Antoly Rozhdestvensky, leader of the expedition, said the scientists found what appeared to be an ancestor of the cow among the bones of mammals living 40,000,000 years ago. This animal, about the size of a small dog, was called an archaeromys.

Nearly were skeletons of three giant brontotheriums, twice the size of a rhinoceros with a spade-shaped snout used for breathing while the animals were searching under for swamp grass.

The expedition also reported the discovery of the complete skeleton of an unusually long-legged rhinoceros, possibly a new species, which they named a proindricotherium. It was believed to be the ancestor of the giant rhinoceroses (twice the size of elephants) whose remnants have been found elsewhere in Asia.

Ban Remains On Servants

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming firmly rejected an opposition suggestion Friday to relax the law forbidding federal civil servants to engage in political activities.

He told the Commons that if civil servants were permitted to engage in political activities they could be exposed to "all kinds" of subtle pressures from government.

New Trial Ordered

Court Sets Aside Manson 'Abuse' In Estate Dispute

Judgment of a retired Supreme Court justice has been set aside and a new trial ordered by the B.C. Court of Appeal in a long-standing dispute over a Victoria inheritance.

New trial will decide who is to share what is left of $100,000 left by Stephen Jones, one-time owner of the Dominion Hotel, who died in 1933.

Mr. Jones left his son Howard $70 a month because of what he termed an ill-considered marriage at the age of 20.

If, however, at 35 Howard was free of any dispute with his wife and under no liability to pay her any money received from the estate, then he was to receive $100,000—as did four other children.

Nothing wrong
The late Mr. Justice Dennis Murphy ruled there was nothing wrong with this and was upheld by the Court of Appeal.

In 1945 Howard Jones, who died three years ago, renewed his case with a claim of new evidence.

At that time Mr. Justice A. M. Maclean, having, as he said, "reviewed this evidence," set aside the previous rulings.

He declared the portion of the will referring to Howard Jones to be contrary to public policy and therefore void.

Last year Mr. Justice A. H. Maclean, in a ruling based on that of Mr. Justice Maclean, held Howard Jones' two daughters by his first marriage, his second wife and her

'Failure' Church Topic

"Failure of the church," as discussed recently in Maclean's magazine, will be the subject of a panel discussion Sunday at Centennial United Church.

The discussion will replace the sermon during the regular 7:30 p.m. service. The public is invited.

Panelists will be Rev. Gordon Dufferin of Gordon United Church at Langford and three laymen—Clifford Horwood of Fairfield United Church and Mrs. Bruce Barr and Len Foster of Centennial United.

Dr. S. J. Parsons, pastor of Centennial United, will be moderator.

Panel members will be asked if they agree with the contention of church leaders published in the article, and if so, what should churches do.

Persons attending will be given an opportunity to participate in an open discussion.

Salvation Army Band To Aid Cub Project

Salvation Army junior band, directed by Max Chalk, will give a concert at the Citadel, 757 Pandora, at 8 p.m. today in support of the SA Cub pack.

Proceeds from a collection during the service will be used to buy gymnasium equipment for the 18-member Cub pack.

Trans Canada at 32.14 and Trans Mountain at 32.14 were strong spots in industrials, and West Canada Steel rose to 32.14.

Royalite eased to 8.75 in oils.

Among unlisted mines Gulch rose twenty cents to 32. Like Torwest it has property in the Highland Valley copper area.

Trans Canada Rises

MONTREAL (CP)—Stocks made fractional gains in heavy industrial trading.

International Utilities jumped 24 to 44 to lead winners. Trans Canada Pipe Lines rose 1 to 23.14, and Interprovincial Pipe Line gained a point at 6.14.

Strong Finish

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market finished the week strongly in moderate trading.

International Utilities took the biggest gain.

Steady mining trade brought gains for the major mines.

Western oils made small but constant gains.

New York Boils

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market boiled with volume just before Thursday's 6,010,000 shares and prices mixed.

Profits were taken on huge gains, with the result that some recent favorites dropped several points.

Allegheny Corp. common was the volume leader as peace talks between management and the union collapsed and the threat of a proxy fight was renewed.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters)—There was a further reduction in business.

Leading industrials were irregular but electrical equipments were generally higher.

Brewery shares remained a fairly active market but textiles were dull.

Garden Notes

Decorate Out Front

By M. V. CHENNUT, FRHM

The flower beds out around the front of the house pose some particular problems, especially in the case of the small city home. These beds, usually one each side of the front steps, are in such a prominent position and so eye-catching from the street that considerable thought must go into their furnishing.

It seems to me that such beds should be looked upon as a decorative adjunct to the house, not just as a place to grow some flowers. If you want to produce cut flowers for the house, do it out back, reserving the front beds for their decorative role. Select the flowers for these beds as you would select your costume accessories with an eye to the effect they will have on the picture as a whole.

I think it pays to fill these beds completely with all the same kind of flower and in the one color, making a bold mass that catches the eyes from the street line. If you were to furnish the bed with, say, a dozen clarkias, half a dozen snapys and a few cornflowers, it might look pretty enough from up close, but it wouldn't make much of a showing from the street. On the other hand, if you packed the beds closely and solidly with the flaming scarlet salvia, they would hit you in the eye like a neon sign.

There are two qualities we must look for in the flowers we choose for these front beds. First, they must start blooming fairly early in the season and second, they must keep on blooming right through until fall.

To illustrate the first point, if we were to fill our decorative beds with asters, we wouldn't have any bloom until August. The summer would be more than half over before we had anything but green leaves to set off our home. By the same token, a bed filled with godetia would put on a grand splurge of color in late June and early July, but the display would last for only two or three weeks. For the balance of the summer, again we would have nothing but foliage.

There are not many flowers that can meet these exacting requirements. Salvia is one, blooming from June until October, and against a white painted or stucco dwelling the brilliant scarlet is most attractive. If the beds are big enough to allow for a narrow edging in a contrasting color, I suggest Ageratum Blue Mink, with flowers in a soft powder blue shade.

You can't use a scarlet salvia against a red brick house, of course, nor against any pink or red shades. Snapdragons are useful here, particularly the variety Tetra Candlelight, a lovely pale yellow shade. The Tetra snaps have extremely large and ruffled flowers and stand about 24 inches tall, with stems as thick as a walking stick, needing no staking.

Probably the most versatile of all bedding plants is Petunia nana compacta. This race makes mound-shaped plants 12 to 15 inches tall, with a spread of about 18 inches and covered with such a profusion of flowers that you can hardly see the plant for the blooms. The individual flowers are on the small side, about two inches across, and are available in practically every color except yellow.

Never sow petunia seed outdoors. The seeds are so much smaller than the grains of soil that they work themselves down too deep for germination and the tiny plants are battered into the ground by even a light rain. Sow very thinly on the surface of sterilized soil indoors or buy your started plants from a greenhouse operator or a garden centre.

Tony's Done It Again!

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Tony Perkins, who should have been Oscar-nominated for his best acting in "Psycho," will be adding another top actress, Melina Mercouri, to the impressive list of women stars to whom he has made love on the screen. Tony recently completed "Goodbye Again" with Ingrid Bergman in Paris. Before that he snooched with Sophia Loren in "Desire Under the Elms." Now he is on the point of signing to co-star with the provocative "Never on Sunday" lady of the evening, Miss Mercouri, in the Jules Dassin film production of "Phedra."

The big disappointment of the current TV season is the Nanette Fabray-Wendell Corey show. Nanette was so good as the wife of Al Capone a few seasons ago. What happened?

Ginger Rogers plays twins in her new TV pilot for the Ginger Rogers Show. And both girls are in love with handsome Cesare Danova.

Strange that three top Oscar nominations went to three stars playing ladies of easy virtue—Shirley Jones in "Elmer Gantry," Elizabeth Taylor, "Butterfield 8," and Melina Mercouri, "Never on Sunday." No wonder the good girls wait to be baddies on the screen.

As soon as Marilyn Monroe feels up to it, and as of going to press she was feeling fine, she will hop to Hollywood to star in "Goodbye Charlie," in which she will appear as a man for most of the filming. Lauren Bacall, who starred in the Broadway production, has a more suitable figure for the male masquerade. Marilyn might make this movie before she puts in the six weeks of rehearsal required for her "Rain" spectacular on TV.

Dinah Shore, who will be leaving her current TV spot at the end of her current series, is already planning a new show, one that will have more acting than singing. General Barnoff, head of NBC and RCA, and executive John West were guests at Dinah's Beverly Hills home not too long ago. Her color TV set didn't work, and the two big shots went to work on it. Unsuccessfully! Next day Dinah received a new RCA color TV set.

In faraway Kyoto, Japan, Yves Montand was struggling with his English early in the morning on the set of "My Geisha." "I sleep in French," he protested. "Do not speak me English so soon in morning. English geeve me headache after breakfast."

All French actors with the exception of Charles Boyer seem to have great trouble learning English. Jacques Bergerac, after seven years in this country is still taking English lessons, even though he was once married to Ginger Rogers, and now to Dorothy Malone. With Jacques, it's the accent, not the words, that he is working on.

Gene Tierney rented her Connecticut home to Steve Allen who plans to spend much more time in the east, though he prefers his home in the west. Steve has all the money he can ever use, but a performer has to perform—and the jobs for Steve are in New York city.

Jeff Chandler, filming a picture in Manila, is lonely for Hollywood and Marilyn Maxwell, and has been running up a hefty trans-Pacific phone bill. And here I thought Jeff still wooing Angie Dickinson! And wasn't Marilyn supposed to be having dinner dates with Rock Hudson? Aw well!

Women of Spain

Coming Into Own

Pablo's Paradise in Peril

By ALAN HARVEY

(Third of a Series)

MADRID (CP)—A social revolution is eroding Spain's system of petticoat apartheid. Women, at last, are coming into their own.

Pity poor Pablo. His masculine paradise is in danger. For centuries he has ruled the roost, keeping his beautiful girls behind high walls before marriage and within four walls after it.

Spanish women, though noted for sensuality, were surprisingly prim and proper.

Now, thanks to foreign films and 3,000,000 tourists a year, the barriers are crumbling. Career girls scarce by Cane diast standards, are appearing in offices. Courting couples hold hands in public and go to the movies together.

Occasionally papa lends a hand with the dishes or tags along with the family on a Sunday picnic.

Which is a big change from the days when the corner cafe was Pablo's living room, and he and his wife inhabited separate worlds.

"It was a vicious circle," said one senorita. "The woman had no interests. She was too busy bringing up a big brood of children. So the husband looked elsewhere, and the wife became even more isolated."

A married man who heard the remark shrugged and said that was the tradition. Anyway the Spanish husband was always faithful to his wife—in spirit.

In sunny Andalusia, where eight centuries of Moorish rule left a permanent mark on Spanish customs, courtesies used to be conducted by conversation. The girl stood behind a window with her novio (boy friend) looking up from the sidewalk. Ground-floor windows were consequently covered.

Sometimes couples crouched on opposite sides of the front door, whispering sweet nothings through openings de signed to admit the family cat. Courtesies lasted for years and sometimes ended with the girl left high and dry. At its most extreme, the Andalusian attitude to women was summed up in the saying:

Barriers Slowly Crumbling

"I killed her because she was mine, and if she lived again I should kill her again."

Even today, engagements have a Victorian decorum. The song about a fine romance, with no kisses, could have been written about Spain.

British writer V. S. Pritchett has noted the conflict between the "militant, formal, prim" appearance of Spanish women and their "homely, innocent and sensual side."

"They are passionate lovers of children," he wrote. "There is marriage and eight children in their eyes."

For three hours, at a Madrid cocktail party, I talked with Spanish women about their changing customs. All agreed that men and women are drawing closer together. But they stressed that moral standards remain high.

Asked why standards seem less high in Latin American countries where Roman Catholicism also flourishes, one woman replied in a flash:

"Perhaps they are infected by being so close to America and to your country, Canada."

On balance, the distaff side remains a stronghold of decency. The cult of the pinup poster has not spread to Spain and girls dress modestly to avoid undue strain on Spanish morals, though bikinis are now seen on the beaches between Valencia and Alicante on the Mediterranean coast.

Whatever fetters hedge them about, the girls exude admiration. Fawn-shy yet straightforward, womanly without being brash, carrying themselves with a natural grace, they seem as chic as Paris models as they walk along in their twos and threes, arm in arm and avoiding the masculine eye.

They have dainty feet and hands, on which they lavish great care, and lustrous dark hair. Younger ones favor trim-fitting dresses, beehive hairdos and stiletto heels.

Their drawbacks seem confined to a tendency to age quickly, a lack of sophisticated conversation except at the highest level, and what one Englishman described as "drooping Hapsburg lips."

U.S. Vaccine Outdated Cuban Paper Charges

HAVANA (AP)—The semi-official newspaper Revolution charged yesterday that U.S. Navy authorities gave out-dated polio vaccine to Cuban Red Cross workers fighting polio in eastern Cuba.

The delivery of such vaccine proved President Kennedy's "cynicism," the newspaper said, and was "a vile attempt to make political propaganda."

Jack Paar 'Chicken'

Sullivan Argues Rules For 'Great Fee Debate'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A projected TV "great debate" between Jack Paar and Ed Sullivan over guest star payments bogged down Friday in an increasingly bitter dispute over ground rules, with Sullivan calling Paar "chicken."

Both men said they were willing to go on Paar's late night show any night and argue out the subject before their millions of viewers.

But their wrangle over how the debate should be conducted suggested neither was really rushing to meet the other face-to-face before the cameras.

NO AUDIENCE

Sullivan insisted there be no TV studio audience. He said he wanted to debate Paar "not Paar's audience" about the fact that performers get paid more than 20 times as much for appearing on Sullivan's show than on Paar's. Paar said he'd always had a studio audience and wouldn't debate Sullivan without one.

"Paar plays his audience like an organ," said Sullivan. "He's asking for help from his audience. If he insists on an audience he's chicken—he doesn't want a debate."

"I ask him in the name of sportsmanship to do without his audience for one night." The mushrooming feud bore some comic resemblance to the negotiations between President Kennedy and former vice-president Richard Nixon before they staged their series of pre-election "great debates."

PICKING SIDES

Meanwhile, several television headlines already were picking sides in the dispute touched off by Sullivan when he announced that stars who perform on Paar's show for a flat $320 fee no longer will be able to demand $7,500 for appearing on Sullivan's show.

Paar at first challenged Sullivan to pick any Sunday night and schedule the best talent he could get on his CBS show.

MAY BEST WIN

Paar then would put on a "special" at the same time on NBC and "may the best man win the ratings."

Sullivan retorted with the counter-challenge of a face-to-face meeting on Paar's show. "Sullivan is most welcome to come on my show," Paar replied. "But my studio audience stays. He can't tell me how to run my show. It's my show; he can't change it."

"I didn't bar an audience when President Kennedy appeared (while still a Senator), and I didn't bar the audience with Vice-President Nixon. Why change the rules for Sullivan? Who's he?"

"I didn't start this thing—Sullivan did," Paar added, "and it's getting pretty silly. Sullivan made his own ham-mock, now let him stand up in it."

END OF SHOW

"Most unfair and wrong," Paar told his audience of Sullivan's stand on fees. "I believe Mr. Sullivan—if he could put this thing over it would be the end of the Tonight show as we know it."

Sullivan said he didn't mind if top-name stars just sat on Paar's comfortable couch and chatted, but when they stood up and performed a prepared, rehearsed act for $320 "it's a completely different thing."

10 Weeks Lifeguard Assured at Lakes

Victoria Noon Optimist Club, which last summer gave $2,000 to increase lifeguard service at Elk and Beaver Lakes, this year will give up to $3,200, it has decided.

City parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday that this gift in addition to Victoria and Saanich funds will assure lifeguard service for a 10-week period beginning around July 1 at the major lake beaches of the area.

Anti-Bias Bill

Race Prejudice In Cemeteries?

British Columbia's new anti-discrimination legislation received third and final reading in the legislature yesterday, but not before it was questioned whether the regulations pertained to the dead as well as the living.

Arthur Turner (CCF—Vancouver East) said some cemeteries do exercise discrimination in the sale of lots and services given. He said sometimes people of one race are not allowed to be buried near a person of another race.

LOOK INTO MATTER

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, under whose jurisdiction the new Public Accommodation Practices Act will come, said he will look into the matter.

Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) said if the new Act doesn't include cemeteries, the Public Utilities Commission has jurisdiction over cemeteries and may make regulations. The new Act gives equal rights to all persons, regardless of class or person or because of race, religion, nationality, ancestry, or place of origin.

POINT RAISED

Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) raised the point that some land conveyances contain a clause to the effect that "no Asiatic, Negro, Jew or member of the Jewish faith is permitted to purchase under the particular covenant."

Mr. Dowding observed that the clause is meaningless and couldn't be enforced, but pointed out the land registry office accepts documents with racial covenants written in. He charged the clause are put in "deliberately, so people believe it exists. An unknown-ing public thinks it means something, but of course it does not," he said.

WRITTEN IN

He said such clauses are written into agreements in Shaughnessy Heights, British Pacific Properties and even government property sold in the University Endowment Lands.

He asked that legislation be written into the anti-discrimination bill to prohibit such practices because as it stands the clauses form "damaging and grievous approval, in a public record, of racial discrimination."

His amendment was turned down by Mr. Peterson, on behalf of the government, because registering of property did not come under public accommodations, and in any event the clauses were void and not registrable.

FINAL READING

The legislature got down to the business of legislation yesterday and passed through final reading of a number of bills.

A bill to transfer the provincial library from supervision of the education department, to the provincial secretary, received final reading.

Final reading was given to a bill which gives the B.C. Government Travel Bureau its own Act, which among other things establishes its powers to classify tourist accommodations.

Overnight Gale

Courtenay, Comox Blacked Out

COURTENAY—Wind gusts up to 75 miles an hour blacked out 4,200 homes in Courtenay and Comox late Thursday night.

B.C. Hydro said a conductor blown down on the highway between the two centres tripped off the automatic circuit breaker at Puntledge power house. Courtenay televiewers missed only 40 minutes of the late night show but 1,500 homes in Comox waited more than two hours for power.

Telephone service remained normal and no other serious damage was reported from the gale.

In the Nanaimo area five homes in Cedar were without power early yesterday when winds gusting to nearly 50 mph. struck the area.

The Cedar power break was caused when a tree blew across lines.

A tree blocked the Departure Bay road for a short time.

Study Completed

Hostel Care For Jobless On Welfare?

Establishment of a hostel for unemployed men on social assistance who cannot readily be employed may be considered in Victoria as the result of a study by welfare administrator William Hooson.

Mr. Hooson found in examining the records of the 270 "unemployed employables" on the city's welfare roll late last month, he said yesterday, that 15 per cent were young men with little or no work experience and generally less than Grade 10 education; 25 per cent were men over 50 without much prospect of regular employment, and that of the remaining 60 per cent about one-third were alcoholics or otherwise socially handicapped to the point of needing "more than a job to make them useful members of society."

He will suggest to city council health and welfare committee Monday, he said, that "perhaps some type of hostel care rather than the type of assistance given now" be studied.

Co-operation of organizations such as the Salvation Army and the Alcoholic Foundation of B.C. probably would be needed, Mr. Hooson said, but boarding the men in a hostel instead of issuing cheques and vouchers "would give us a chance to separate out some cases for rehabilitation and let us make a far better assessment of the situation."

Esquimalt Rejects Staff Wage Bids

Esquimalt council last night rejected wage demands of its inside and outside staffs.

Some 45 members of the outside staff sought a 10-cent-an-hour increase, across the board, and five inside staff members asked for a five-per-cent increase.

They also sought increased vacations after five years' service. Reeve A. C. Wurtele, for the council, told the employees' representative, Percy Rayment, it was felt that the existing agreement is reasonable and employees should "hold the line" this year.

Mr. Rayment had no comment last night.

Unions Urge Door-Sale Crackdown

Victoria Labor Council yesterday called on city council to consider ways of combatting questionable door-to-door sales operations.

It suggested that trades-union officials of Greater Victoria be empowered to meet for this purpose, and consider requiring individuals with no place of business in Greater Victoria to post substantial bonds.

Powell River-Comox Ferry Run Sought

COURTENAY—A new ferry service linking Powell River and Comox is being considered by Coast Ferries Ltd., it was learned here yesterday.

President O. H. New of Coast Ferries Ltd. of Vancouver said yesterday the firm plans to go ahead, providing the provincial government agrees not to start a competing service.

Starting date for the service, if launched, would be early fall. Coast Ferries operates service in Gulf Islands at present.

Tourist Cash Big Concern Of Chambers

The tourist industry is the main topic of resolutions to be submitted to the annual convention of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island to be held in Victoria next week.

A number of the resolutions deal specifically with construction of roads up Island but almost all of them stress the value to tourism in the premises. They include:

BUILD ROADS

Port Alberni: Request the provincial government to acquire privately owned land to build roads through forested areas. Request the provincial government to proceed with construction of a tourist highway along the west coast of Vancouver Island from Port Renfrew to Bamfield and from Bamfield to Port Alberni.

BELTS OF LAND

Campbell River: Request revision of Strathcona Park boundaries to include Forbidden Plateau and belts of land along both banks of Campbell Lake and Campbell River. Request construction of a trail through Elk Falls Park, Strathcona Park, along the east shore of Butte Lake, along Shepherd's Creek, Ralph Creek to Forbidden Plateau with provision of camping and picnic facilities at Upper Campbell-Butte Lake.

Courtenay-Comox: Request appointment of a board of inquiry into disparity in costs of gasoline and diesel fuel in B.C. Request dedication of Forbidden Plateau as a park.

$140,000 Permit

Building permit for a $140,000 apartment block at Beacon and Douglas was issued yesterday at city hall. The 18-suite, three-story building will be erected opposite Beacon Hill Park by Patterson Construction Co.

Burnaby Man Named To Succeed Wiesman

A 34-year-old Welshman, Tony Roberts, of Burnaby, was named last night as successor to planner Brahm Wiesman who takes up a new post in Vancouver next month.

Mr. Roberts, now assistant director of planning in Burnaby, is expected to arrive here early in May to assume his new role as director of the Capital Region Planning Board.

He was formerly a member of the city of Toronto planning board, in charge of current operations. Earlier, he worked for the Ontario department of planning.

Mr. Wiesman will leave at the end of March to become assistant director of planning for the city of Vancouver.

His assistant, Darshan Johal, will be appointed acting director during the interim.

City welfare administrator William Hooson will ask that city council oppose a section of a bill before the legislature which, he said yesterday, would require that the names of persons receiving assistance be published.

B.C. municipalities already have opposed their inclusion among the organizations receiving government grants or debt guarantees which, under the terms of the bill, would

Positive Proof

To emphasize his call for action on the clinder problem, Harold Gregson of 474 Burnside sent this box of fly ash from his attic to city council, Joyce Farquharson, secretary of the smoke abatement advisory committee, examines the "communication," which council referred to the committee. Would Force Finance Reports

Scrutiny by 'Crackpots' Feared if Bill Passes

Premier Bennett's bill to let sunlight into financial status of public bodies operating in whole, or in part, with government funds got a rough ride through second reading in the legislature yesterday, but ended up with a unanimous vote in favor.

The bill would force 15 different groups, including University of B.C., Victoria University, municipalities, Highways and Toll Bridges Authority, PGE Railway, school boards and B.C. Hydro to submit detailed financial statements, in the same form as the provincial public accounts.

ADDED EXPENSE

It would create added expenses for municipalities to provide such a report and the information is already available to government authorities, argued Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

Bert Price (SC—Vancouver-Burrard) said he agreed with the bill but asked if some cheaper form of statement could be devised for municipalities and school boards. He said...Vancouver school board said the new bill would cost it an additional $20,000 a year in auditing costs.

"If you are going to let light in, I would like to see what is paid to, and the expenses of, the heads of these big corporations. . . . As far as I can see they spend pretty freely."

John Squire (CCF—Alberni) warned it could create a political football.

"He said once a financial statement of that kind is made it would be available to any crackpot who wished it."

"I for one don't want the wages, and whatever expenses are entailed, with Dr. Norman McKendrick (UBC president) bandied around this province," he said.

"If you are going to let light in, I would like to see what is paid to, and the expenses of, the heads of these big corporations. . . . As far as I can see they spend pretty freely."

Mr. Gargrave phoned Esquimalt police and they checked the numbers with the B.C. motor vehicles branch.

"The kid's playing a joke on you," said the police. "One of the numbers you gave us is that of your own car."

The teacher promptly checked his own car and found his number was different from the ones he had given police. Once again he telephoned the constabulary, this time hotter than ever.

Another check brought a contrite admission from the motor vehicles branch that it wasn't Ken Giffard's car after all—it was Charles A. Giffard, father of Ken and principal of Oak Bay High School.

Ken figured his father would be the last man to go through a safety patrol and, besides, he would have been

He said the big integrated companies made their money out of B.C.'s natural resources. "If we are concerned about what is happening to public funds, let's see what is going on in some of these integrated companies," he said.

"This government has no intention of interfering in the operations of universities or municipalities," Premier Bennett promised.

THIRD TIME LUCKY: The other day one of the pupils on school patrol duty at Esquimalt High School breathlessly rushed up to teacher Kenneth Giffard and gave him the numbers of two cars which, she said, had driven right through the safety lane against the red flag.

Miss Cook Wed Last Evening

Baskets of spring flowers and plum blossoms decorated the Church of St. David's-by-the-Sea for the lovely ceremony last evening when Rev. Gordon Walker heard the wedding vows of Miss Shirley Anne Hill and Mr. Thomas Barry Cook.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hill, 1018 Walema Avenue, Cordova Bay, was given in marriage by her father. For the ceremony, she wore a charming powder blue brocade suit, and carried a white prayer book on which lay a corsage of gardenias. White streamers dotted with red rosebuds flowed from the book. Her accessories were white.

Attending the bride was her sister, Mrs. Barry Wilmore, in a pale blue dress with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cook, 5908 West Saanich Road, has Mr. Barry Wilmore as best man, and Mr. Doug Lohr and Mr. Arthur Wilson as ushers.

Following the ceremony, guests were received at the home of the bride's parents, where a two-tier wedding cake decorated by Mrs. Belle Stevens centred the main table. Mr. Walter Crossley proposed the toast to the bride, his god-daughter.

The newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

Grand Court To Convene

Mr. Lloyd McKenzie, president of the Victoria Branch of the Heart Foundation, will be presented with a cheque from members of the Grand Court of British Columbia, Order of the Amaranth, gathering in Victoria for its annual session Monday and Tuesday, March 13 and 14.

They will meet in the Georgian Room of the Empress Hotel, and Mrs. Marjorie Hill of Victoria will preside, assisted by Mr. John Robinson of North Vancouver.

Mrs. Annette Frey of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mr. Robert Irwin of St. Petersburg, Fla., and supreme and grand officers from Washington, Oregon and California will attend.

Mayor Scourah will extend a welcome from the city of Victoria. Monday evening there will be a banquet, and Tuesday evening the grand officers for the ensuing year will be installed.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: How can a mother teach her young children that it pays to be honest when some people behave in a way that makes an honest person look like a sucker?

We are in very modest circumstances. My husband is a construction worker and was laid off last year for five weeks. I had to take a part time job to help out. Friday I went to the laundrette to do the family washing. I took our nine-year-old son and 10-year-old daughter along. When we got home I found a wallet mixed in with my bed sheets. I don't know how it got there.

There was $110 in the wallet and an identification card. I called the number and there was no answer. The kids said "Keep the money, Mom. You tried to return it once, that's enough." I said "No, we'll try again tomorrow."

The next morning I reached the party and she seemed grateful. She sent her husband over for the wallet. He said "Thanks a lot."

"The kids said to me after he left, 'We thought sure he'd give you a big reward, Mom. You should have kept the wallet.' I said nothing. What is there to say?" DIS-APPOINTED IN PEOPLE.

Dear Disappointed: There is this to say: It's good for children to see someone do what is right even though there is no reward. Parents who behave with integrity and put honesty and a clear conscience before money teach children a valuable lesson.

The example you set is worth a million dollars to

Diocesan Board

More Vocations to Church Great Need Says Speaker

Dr. D. N. B. Larmouth of the Anglican Theological College spoke of the work being done there, during his speech to members of the Diocesan Board of the Anglican Church of Canada's Auxiliary at their Thursday session.

He said it was the most important work of the ecclesiastical province, in the training of young and older men for the priesthood. He showed members pamphlets which are read by young men and women to guide them in their choice of the church as a vocation. Dr. Larmouth has done a great deal of travelling in the interests of recruitment for the college, and mentioned that in the 11 colleges in Canada there are only 75 graduating this year—whereas, he said, there should be 120 yearly.

Prior to installing the 1961 officers, His Grace, Archbishop H. E. Sexton, gave a short address, stressing the need for men to offer themselves for the ministry, but he also stressed that they must be the very best men—no others would do.

In a standing vote the appointment of the Dominion pledge for 1961 amounting to $6,800 was accepted.

LEADERS NEEDED

A challenge to leadership was issued to members by Mrs. C. N. Whipple, in her report on junior auxiliary work. Mrs. C. N. Whipple said, "Unless these young girls form the habit of membership in church-sponsored organizations when they are young, the WA of the future is going to have a difficult time getting members. And, it is upon members that the church and the WA depend for the furtherance of their objectives."

Duke to Marry In York Minster

LONDON (UPI)—Edward, Duke of Kent, will marry blonde heiress Kathleen Worsley June 8 in one of Britain's most historic cathedrals. It was announced this week.

A Kensington Palace announcement said the duke, 25, and Miss Worsley, 28, will marry in St. Peter's Cathedral, also known as York Minster, seat of the Archbishop of York and second in importance only to Canterbury Cathedral.

Queen Elizabeth II, a first cousin of the duke who was eighth in line to the British throne, will attend the wedding with Prince Philip, the announcement said.

The engagement of Miss Worsley and the duke, who is trying to live down a reputation as prince of the playboys, was announced by Buckingham Palace Wednesday evening.

The ceremony will be conducted by England's highest churchman, Dr. Arthur M. Ramsey, Archbishop-designate of Canterbury.

It will be the second royal wedding in 13 months and the first in the cathedral since King Edward VIII married Queen Phillips there in 1936.

Princess Margaret was married 13 months ago to Antony Armstrong-Jones in the last royal wedding.

The 905-year-old cathedral was believed chosen for the wedding because it is near the home of the bride.

The duke, known to his friends as Eddie, gave Miss Worsley what the Palace described as a "beautiful sapphire" engagement ring. A brilliant diamond is mounted in platinum on each side of the sapphire.

The discreet London jeweler Frank Morrell who sold it to them said they chose the ring several weeks ago. He refused to divulge the price but said they got the "same treatment any young couple getting engaged would receive from us."

He said it took the bride-to-be two days to make up her mind about it.

The couple was at the Kensington Palace home of the duke's mother, the Duchess of

He's a Prisoner of the World

NANAIMO — Emanuel Korley has started off on another leg of a voyage that never seems to end.

The 22-year-old Ghanaian stowed away on the British freighter Susquehanna in August when it called at his native land. Since then he has been a virtual prisoner while the ship called around the world.

He said in an interview he slipped on board the freighter and hid in the hold. He came out of hiding the next day and since then has been with the ship to North and Central America, Communist China, and Italy.

While the ship was in British Columbia he was held in the immigration building at

Vancouver. He arrived here under escort just before the Susquehanna sailed for Liverpool Thursday.

Korley, in soft-spoken but perfect English, says his requests to be sent home have been ignored by the shipping company. He has not been allowed into any country where the ship has called.

Once he went ashore in New Orleans and tried to elude capture by sinking into oblivion in the masses of Negroes in that busy seaport. But his soft English gave him away.

When the ship was in Communist China Korley says his name was added to the crew list. He presumes it was done in order to avoid an explanation of his presence on board.

"I don't know what is to become of me," said Korley when interviewed aboard the tramp steamer.

Familiar Cry Heard

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario municipal governments re-examined their spending programs today in the light of the new three-per-cent provincial sales tax.

Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto said he will demand that Premier Frost exempt municipalities from the tax. This cry was similar to that raised in B.C. on imposition of sales tax.

"It is rather shortsighted to give us provincial grants with one hand and to take them away with the other in the form of a sales tax," he said.

Cowichan Club

Protest Drafted Over Lagoon Sewage System

DUNCAN — A strong protest over the site selected for Duncan's proposed lagoon type sewage disposal system will be made by the Cowichan Fish and Game Association.

The club contends that the low location, on 26 acres of Indian land east of the city limits, will expose the system to flood waters of the Cowichan River that could under mine dikes and carry raw sewage into the lower reaches of the river system, causing pollution and damaging fish life.

In letters to the city of Duncan, union board of health, federal fisheries department, Indian affairs branch and the provincial recreation and conservation department the club will demand that proper river control be a condition of approval for the sewage system.

HEATED DEBATE

A heated debate on the sewage system, joined by members of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, took up the better part of the agenda at the club's monthly meeting.

President Lewis Langlois said he was opposed to the installation of the sewage system on the basis of past experience.

"If you remember, we protested in 1948 against the installation of the present system. But the experts from the Indian department, game commission and the federal fisheries guaranteed there would be no contamination. Either the engineering was wrong or it wasn't put in right because a couple of months after it was operating the Indians got sick and they had to close the river for fishing and swimming."

NEVER APPROVED

Mr. Langlois said he had recently been informed that the present system had never been approved by the board of health. "In all honesty I don't think we have much chance of stopping the new one going in either. All these experts are working together and they don't damn well protest."

He warned that walls of the lagoons would be subjected "to terrific pressure" from the river and could easily be washed out. Wire mesh should also be buried in their sides to prevent muskrat and mink from burrowing holes "or we'll have sewage from here to Cowichan Bay."

School Bylaw

No Substandard Plan For Central Saanich

Spokesmen for the Central Saanich ratepayers group said yesterday it would not settle for substandard planning in the fourth submission of a school building bylaw in the rural sections of the Saanich Peninsula.

K. E. Stanlake, president of Central Saanich Resident Ratepayers' Association, said economies of operation in a well-planned system would "more than offset" any saving that might be effected in voting in a substandard bylaw.

He warned against "those who would impose an inefficient program upon the district, claiming that taxpayers would not vote for anything better."

Mr. Stanlake said: "This is an insult to the taxpayers who are conscious of their responsibility and only want to be assured that they are getting value for their school dollar."

He said rival groups in other areas within School District 63 had brought about the defeat of the $785,000 bylaw on three previous occasions.

"When the public is subjected to a constant barrage of misinformation people quite naturally become confused and vote no to the building program," said Mr. Stanlake.

The school board is seeking the views of a wide section of the public before drafting the bylaw for a fourth presentation. Deadline for submission of views is March 20.

Adenauer Worries Trial Will Reflect on Germany

'Free' Laos K Asks K

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has strongly urged Soviet Premier Khrushchev to co-operate with the United States in making war-torn Laos a completely neutral nation, lest the conflict there explode into a much greater East-West clash.

Fuel Firm Draws Fine

DUNCAN—Ideal Fuel Co. of Victoria was fined $100 in police court for hauling an overweight load on the highway. It was the second conviction this year.

Court was told that the load of lumber was 2,900 pounds over the limit despite the fact that part of it had been removed before the vehicle was checked at the weigh scales.

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany said yesterday he is greatly worried about the trial of former Nazi S.S. leader Adolf Eichmann in Israel. He appealed to the world not to judge the German people by the proceedings.

"I am worried that the reaction may be a judgment against Germany," the chancellor told a press conference. "I am sure that Eichmann will get what he deserves," he said. "I have full confidence in the Israeli government and its judicial system."

The 85-year-old West German leader made the comments when asked whether he thought the trial of Eichmann, accused of responsibility for killing millions of Jews in Nazi extermination camps, will arouse public opinion against Germany.

It was Adenauer's first public statement regarding the Eichmann case.

He said he is absolutely convinced that the Israeli government will not turn the trial into a "political show but will use it to seek justice."

Crocus Bonanza

By PETER BRUTON

The legislature yesterday gave unanimous approval to an Act which gives the government authority to pay the Pacific Great Eastern Railway an operating grant of up to $5,000,000 from tax revenues.

The government-owned railway lost $2,900,000 last year. But Premier Bennett, who doubles as president of the government-owned railroad, dodged opposition questions about a company which owes the PGE $100,000.

ELNAR GUNDERSON

It was stated this company, the W. L. Laird Distributors Limited, Vancouver, had as a director a partner of PGE executive vice-president Elmar Gunderson.

"It appears a scoundrel has permitted the railroad to advance him $100,000 of railroad money and that the scoundrel has now disappeared," said Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

One of the directors of this company was Michael J. Walton, a partner in Mr. Gunderson's accounting business.

INCREASED DEBT

The company increased its debt to the railroad from $29,000 in 1955 to $100,000 this year and the PGE is taking legal action in an attempt to get its money.

"This company owes the people of B.C. $100,000," said Mr. Gargrave. "If we had that the railroad's loss would not be as great."

He demanded to know from Premier Bennett the results of an RCMP investigation into the firm.

SHAREHOLDER

But Premier Bennett dodged the issue. He apologized for inferring previously that North Vancouver Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson had been a shareholder in the Laird company but

THAW SWEETENS UN-CONGO LINK

Leopoldville Declared 'Neutral City'

TANANARIVE, Malagasy Republic (Reuters) — Congolese leaders Friday night decided Leopoldville should become "a neutral city."

The announcement on the Congolese capital was made after a marathon session of Congolese factions meeting on this island republic.

PAVE WAY

Observers said the Congolese leaders could be paving the way to make Leopoldville the capital of an eventual Congolese federation, holding no loyalties to any of the country's provinces or regions.

The spokesman also announced that the conference has cabled United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld expressing "surprise and indignation" at the decision to send nearly 5,000 Indian troops to the Congo. India offered the troops.

DAYS AGO

The cable said the UN move was made "despite our request of two days ago in the United Nations not to take any decisions or start implementing decisions in the Congo until the Tananarive conference ends."

The decision to make Leopoldville a "neutral city" was taken amid reports that plans are already taking shape at the conference for a loose federation of independent Congolese states along the lines long urged by President Joseph Kasavubu.

Sources said the conference has even got around to discussing a suggested name—the Community of Congolese States.

Canadians Too White

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Dag Hammarskjöld isn't pointing the finger at Canada when he asks for more troops for the United Nations Congo force.

The UN secretary-general has said the force must be increased to 25,000 men to keep going but, as far as he is concerned, he isn't looking to such "white" countries as Canada for additions.

Ports' Return Hinted

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Strained relations between the United Nations and the Congo improved so sharply yesterday the Congolese hinted they might accept a compromise on returning the captured UN supply ports of Banana and Matadi.

But they left the final decision to President Joseph Kasavubu, now in Madagascar for a meeting of anti-Lumumbist leaders of the Congo. The Congolese army seized the ports last weekend in a clash with UN forces stationed there.

ANOTHER SIGN

Another sign of a thaw was a turnout of an honor guard when special UN representative Rajeshwar Dayal left Leopoldville for New York and a general assembly debate on the Congo. He is expected to return in about two weeks.

The Congolese turned out their smartest troops when Dayal and his interim replacement, Mekki Abbas of Sudan, called on the acting premier, Jacques Massu. The UN command assumed the honors were for Dayal but the Congolese said the tribute was for Abbas.

UNDER ATTACK

Dayal has been under constant attack by the Congolese government for alleged favoritism to pro-Lumumbist forces. Kasavubu has demanded his recall but Secretary Dag Hammarskjöld rejected the demand. Dayal said his final talks with Massu were "very friendly."

Last Block Falls To Tax Increase

All obstacles to the three-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax melted away yesterday when third and final readings were given to the Act to Amend the Gasoline Tax.

There wasn't even any discussion as the bills were voted upon section by section, but Opposition leader Strachan called for a recorded vote. The tax was subject of a hot two-hour debate during second reading.

Cyril Sheford (SC—Omineca), as an second reading, was the lone government dissenter as he stood with all CCF and Liberal MLAs present.

The bill passed 26 to 19. All that is required for it to become law is for Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes to give royal assent the day the House prorogues.

Dentists See Child Plan

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian dentists are in favor of a proposed dental care plan for children but not for adults, in view of Canada's dentist shortage, Dr. James Whyte, president of the Canadian Dental Association, said Friday.

Health Plan In '62

REGINA (CP) — The target date for introducing a provincial medical care plan still stands and it will be in operation "sometime in 1962," Premier T. C. Douglas said Friday in the legislature.

Target date to receive the medical care committee report and bring in legislation is set for 1961, the premier said. The medical care committee last month ended public hearings. Members now are studying state medicine plans in Europe and Australia and New Zealand.

Probe Reopens Monday Into Policeman's Tactics

Public hearing by Victoria Police Commission in the case of a city constable accused of over-zealousness in the arrest last month of a young Chinese will reopen Monday at 2 p.m. at city police headquarters.

At an earlier hearing the commission held that the officer had acted within his authority.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Security Council agreed Friday to begin debate Tuesday on conditions in Portugal's African territory of Angola which Russia said is ruled by a "regime of military and police terror."

The agreement was made without a vote. The pinpointing of a new trouble spot in Africa was opposed strenuously by Portuguese ambassador Vasco Garin, who contended that the UN had no right to concern itself with Angola, which the Lisbon government considers an integral part of its national territory.

U.S. ambassador Adlai Stevenson, council president for March, declared Liberia's complaint of human rights suppression in the territory adopted for debate. He did not ask for a vote after hearing objection only from Chile to putting the issue on the agenda.

$240,000 Find Turned In

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A middle-aged man in search of a job yesterday discovered $240,000 in unmarked bills lying in the street, but didn't hesitate a moment before turning the cash over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The FBI quoted Douglas William Johnson as saying: "I thought if I kept that money, I'd never be able to look my three kids in the face again."

"And I'd do the same thing again," Johnson said, though it still wasn't certain whether he would receive a reward. A bag containing the money tumbled through the open door of a Brinks armored car minutes after it was picked up at the United California Bank on a regular run.

Johnson, 50, and his wife, Helen, saw the bag lying in the street.

"I'm no richer now than when I started out this morning," the Negro father of three children said.

Arms, Race Bias Conference Topics

LONDON (CP) — Disarmament and apartheid were the main talking points Friday night as the 10th post-war conference of Commonwealth prime ministers headed for a weekend break.

As the conference ended its third day, Prime Minister Diefenbaker drove to Chequers, Prime Minister Macmillan's country residence, for an overnight stay and presumably for talks with Macmillan on whether South Africa should remain within the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Sirmavo Bandaranaike, prime minister of Ceylon, was also among the guests at Chequers. Several other premiers were to go to Chequers during the weekend as a prelude to the decision on South African membership, expected Monday.

All signs so far pointed to a decision to keep South Africa within the family fold, despite strong feelings about apartheid, but there was always the possibility that harsh words from any quarter might cause an explosion. Before going to Chequers, Diefenbaker received calls from strong opponents of apartheid. One was Bishop Ambrose Reeves of Johannesburg, outspoken critic of racial segregation.

Cut Bombast On Africa John D Told

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Socialist leader Hazen Argue said last night Prime Minister John Diefenbaker should "cut out the bombast" and state flatly that Canada opposes the re-entry of South Africa to the Commonwealth. He said Diefenbaker was "cheapening the name of Canada" by talking about a Commonwealth bill of rights at the same time as he searches for a compromise to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth.

10 Weeks Lifeguard Assured at Lakes

Victoria Noon Optimist Club, which last summer gave $2,000 to increase lifeguard service at Elk and Beaver Lakes, this year will give up to $3,200. It has decided.

City parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday that this gift in addition to Victoria and Saanich funds will assure lifeguard service for a 10-week period beginning around July 1 at the major lake beaches of the area.

Race Prejudice In Cemeteries?

British Columbia's new anti-discrimination legislation received third and final reading in the legislature yesterday, but not before it was questioned whether the regulations pertained to the dead as well as the living.

Arthur Turner (CCF—Vancouver East) said some cemeteries do exercise discrimination in the sale of lots and services given. He said sometimes people of one race are not allowed to be buried near a person of another race.

LOOK INTO MATTER

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, under whose jurisdiction the new Public Accommodation Practices Act will come, said he will look into the matter.

Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) said if the new Act doesn't include cemeteries, the Public Utilities Commission has jurisdiction over cemeteries and may make regulations.

The new Act gives equal rights to all persons, regardless of class of person or because of race, religion, nationality, ancestry, or place of origin.

POINT RAISED

Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) raised the point that some land conveyances contain a clause to the effect that "no Asiatic, Negro, Jew or member of the Jewish faith is permitted to purchase under the particular covenant."

Mr. Dowding observed that the clause is meaningless and couldn't be enforced, but pointed out the land registry office accepts documents with racial covenants written in.

He charged the clauses are put in "deliberately, so people believe it exists. An unknown."

ing public thinks it means something, but of course it does not," he said.

WRITTEN IN

He said such clauses are written into agreements in Shaughnessy Heights, British Pacific Properties and even government property sold in the University Endowment Lands.

He asked that legislation be written into the anti-discrimination bill to prohibit such practices because as it stands the clauses form "damaging and grievous approval, in a public record, of racial discrimination."

His amendment was turned down by Mr. Peterson, on behalf of the government, because registering of property did not come under public accommodations, and in any event the clauses were void and not registrable.

FINAL READING

The legislature got down to the business of legislation yesterday and passed through final reading of a number of bills.

A bill to transfer the provincial library from supervision of the education department, to the provincial secretary, received final reading.

Final reading was given to a bill which gives the B.C. Government Travel Bureau its own Act, which among other things establishes its powers to classify tourist accommodations.

COURTENAY—Wind gusts up to 75 miles an hour blacked out 4,200 homes in Courtenay and Comox late Thursday night.

B.C. Hydro said a conductor blown down on the highway between the two centres tripped off the automatic circuit breaker at Puntledge powerhouse. Courtenay televisioners missed only 40 minutes of the late night show but 1,500 homes in Comox waited more than two hours for power.

Telephone service remained normal and no other serious damage was reported from the gale.

DUNCAN—A Victoria man charged with speeding in a 30 zone on the Trans-Canada Highway near here complained in court that speed signs were inadequately marked.

COURTENAY—Excessive speed while in a state of impairment led to the traffic death of a Vancouver airman March 3 in Comox, an inquest jury found yesterday.

James Frederick Anton, 26, of Richmond died of a broken neck, the jury said.

Police said his sports car careened 232 feet out of control at an estimated speed of 90 miles an hour before hurtling into a tree.

Passenger LAC James Alexander Carson, Vancouver, was thrown clear with only minor injuries.

He testified Anton had come to Comox earlier in the evening for a farewell party marking his recent transfer to Vancouver. They had seven or eight beers in a two-hour period before the accident. Carson's testimony showed.

LADYSMITH—Education week is in full swing here with guest speakers, panel discussions and school visiting.

Another group of students, however, untouched by all these varied activities yet happily engaged in the pursuit of learning, are the seventy three adult students attending night school classes at the Ladysmith high school.

Tourist Cash Big Concern Of Chambers

The tourist industry is the main topic of resolutions to be submitted to the annual convention of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island to be held in Victoria next week.

Request the provincial government to proceed with construction of a tourist highway along the west coast of Vancouver Island from Port Renfrew to Bamfield and from Bamfield to Port Alberni.

Would Force Finance Reports

Scrutiny by 'Crackpots' Feared if Bill Passes

Premier Bennett's bill to let sunlight into financial status of public bodies operating in whole, or in part, with government funds got a rough ride through second reading in the legislature yesterday, but ended up with a unanimous vote in favor.

The bill would force 15 different groups, including University of B.C., Victoria University, municipalities, Highways and Toll Bridges Authority, PGE Railway, school boards and B.C. Hydro to submit detailed financial statements, in the same form as the provincial public accounts.

ADDED EXPENSE

It would create added expenses for municipalities to provide such a report and the information is already available to government authorities, argued Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

Bert Price (SC—Vancouver-Burrard) said he agreed with the bill but asked if some cheaper form of statement could be devised for municipalities and school boards.

He said Vancouver school board said the new bill would cost it an additional $20,000 a year in auditing costs.

John Squire (CCF—Alberni) warned it could create a political football.

He said once a financial statement of that kind is made it would be available to any crackpot who wished it.

"I for one don't want the wages, and whatever expenses are entailed, with Dr. Norman Macdonald (UBC president) handled around this province," he said.

"If you are going to let light in, I would like to see what is paid to, and the expenses of, the heads of these big corporations.... As far as I can see they spend pretty freely."

He said the big integrated companies made their money out of B.C.'s natural resources.

"If we are concerned about what is happening to public funds, let's see what is going on in some of these integrated companies," he said.

"This government has no intention of interfering in the operations of universities or municipalities," Premier Bennett promised.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan said he would be happy if universities and municipalities were taken out of the bill.

Checks One, Two, Three Prove Pupil Can See

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

THIRD TIME LUCKY: The other day one of the pupils on school patrol duty at Equilmalt High School breathlessly rushed up to teacher Kenneth Gibbard and gave him the numbers of two cars which, he said, had driven right through the safety lane against the red flag.

Mr. Gibbard phoned Equilmalt police and they checked the numbers with the B.C. motor vehicles branch.

"The kid's playing a joke on you," said the police. "One of the numbers you gave us is that of your own car."

The teacher promptly checked his own car and found his number was different from the ones he had given police. Once again he telephoned the constabulary, this time hotter than ever.

Another check brought a contrite admission from the motor vehicles branch that it wasn't Ken Gibbard's car after all—it was Charles A. Gibbard, father of Ken and principal of Oak Bay High School.

Ken figured his father would be the last man to get through a safety patrol and, besides, so would have been in school at the time of the offence.

So a third check was made and this time it came out fine. The plate reported by the girl was a 1961 licence which was the same number as Charles Gibbard's 1960 plates. Police are taking action.

BLACKED OUT: — Photographer Jim Ryan was taking some news footage for CHAN-TV in Vancouver not so long ago.

After finishing the job his news subject asked him when it would be on television.

"Can you get Channel 8," asked Jim.

"Nope, can't get a thing," replied the man.

"Why not?" continued Jim.

THE SLY DOG: When Phil Barron gets home from his night-shift job he looks forward to a good sleep.

Most nights lately, however, sleep has not been for him.

Seems Phil's black Labrador has been taking lessons from the kids. He has seen how easy it is for them to gain admittance to the house.

So most mornings, around about 4 a.m., the dog decides he has had just about enough of his nocturnal wanderings and asks to be let into the house—by standing on his two hind legs and ringing the doorbell with his paw.

LOCAL HONOR: Northwest Creamery's Al Davidson tells me that the company was advised yesterday that it had won the diploma of merit award for their Velvet Ice cream for the 11th consecutive year in competition with ice creams from all over Canada and the U.S.

TOP DOG: Premier Bennett told the legislature yesterday that the voters in his home riding of South Okanagan have such confidence in him that "they vote for me no matter how often I change my political stripes."

This brought an immediate query from CCF ranks as to whether the one-time Conservative turned Social Creditor was now thinking about joining the New Party.

"If I do I'll star it in the right direction," said the premier. "Right now it's heading for the ditch."

"He wants to be our leader already," chorled a CCF'er.

He's a Prisoner of the World

NANAIMO — Emanuel Korley has started off on another leg of a voyage that never seems to end.

The 22-year-old Ghanaian stowed away on the British freighter Susquehanna in August when it called at his native land. Since then he has been a virtual prisoner while the ship called around the world.

He said in an interview he slipped on board the freighter and hid in the hold. He came out of hiding the next day and since then has been with the ship to North and Central America. Communist China, and Italy.

While the ship was in British Columbia he was held in the immigration biding at

Vancouver. He arrived here under escort just before the Susquehanna sailed for Liverpool Thursday.

Korley, in soft-spoken but perfect English, says his requests to be sent home have been ignored by the shipping company. He has not been allowed into any country where the ship has called.

Once he went ashore in New Orleans, and tried to elude capture by sinking into oblivion in the masses of Negroes in that busy seaport. But his soft English gave him away.

When the ship was in Communist China Korley says his name was added to the crew list. He presumes it was done in order to avoid an explanation of his presence on board.

"I don't know what is to become of me," said Korley when interviewed aboard the tramp steamer.

Islanders Steal The Show

VANCOUVER (CP) — A rollicking, earthy comedy — "The Three Cuckolds" — by the Lake Cowichan Players at the B.C. regional drama festival here Thursday kept an audience of 300 in laughter throughout.

The direction, acting and setting all drew praise from adjudicator Norma Springfield.

"I take my invisible hat off to this group for presenting this wonderful example of living theatre," she said.

Miss Springfield reserved her greatest plaudits for director Yvonne Green and Adrian Pecknold, who played the male lead.

Protest Drafted Over Lagoon Sewage System

DUNCAN — A strong protest over the site selected for Duncan's proposed lagoon type sewage disposal system will be made by the Cowichan Fish and Game Association.

The club contends that the low location, on 26 acres of Indian land east of the city limits, will expose the system to flood waters of the Cowichan River that could undermine dikes and carry raw sewage into the lower reaches of the river system, causing pollution and damaging fish life.

In letters to the city of Duncan, union board of health, federal fisheries department, Indian affairs branch and the provincial recreation and conservation department the club will demand that proper river control be a condition of approval for the sewage system.

HEATED DEBATE

A heated debate on the sewage system, joined by members of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, took up the better part of the agenda at the club's monthly meeting.

President Lewis Langlois said he was opposed to the installation of the sewage system on the basis of past experience.

"If you remember, we protested in 1948 against the installation of the present system. But the experts from the Indian department, game commission and the federal fisheries guaranteed there would be no contamination. Either the engineering was wrong or it wasn't put in right because a couple of months after it was operating the Indians got sick and they had to close the river for fishing and swimming."

NEVER APPROVED

Mr. Langlois said he had recently been informed that the present system had never been approved by the board of health. "In all honesty I don't think we have much chance of stopping the new one going in either. All these experts are working together and they don't damn well protest."

He warned that walls of the lagoons would be subjected "to terrific pressure" from the river and could easily be washed out. Wire mesh should also be buried in their sides to prevent muskrat and mink from burrowing holes "or we'll have sewage from here to Cowichan Bay."

THAW EASES CONGO CRISIS

Leopoldville Declared 'Neutral City'

TANANARIVE, Malagasy Republic (Reuters) — Congolese leaders Friday night decided Leopoldville should become "a neutral city."

The announcement on the Congolese capital was made after a marathon session of Congolese factions meeting on this island republic.

Observers said the Congolese leaders could be paving the way to make Leopoldville the capital of an eventual Congolese federation, holding no loyalties to any of the country's provinces or regions.

CABLE TO DAG

The spokesman also announced that the conference has cabled United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld expressing "surprise and indignation" at the decision to send nearly 5,000 Indian troops to the Congo. India offered the troops.

The cable said the UN move was made "despite our request of two days ago to the United Nations not to take any decisions or start implementing decisions in the Congo until the Tananarive conference ends."

LOOSE GROUP

The decision to make Leopoldville a "neutral city" was taken amid reports that plans are already taking shape at the conference for a loose federation of independent Congolese states along the lines long urged by President Joseph Kasavubu.

Canadians Too White

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Dag Hammarskjöld isn't pointing the finger at Canada when he asks for more troops for the United Nations Congo force.

The UN secretary-general has said the force must be increased to 23,000 men to keep going but, as far as race is concerned, he isn't looking for such "white" countries as Canada for additions.

Ports Return Likely

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Strained relations between the United Nations and the Congo improved so sharply yesterday the Congolese hinted they might accept a compromise on returning the captured UN supply ports of Banana and Matadi.

But they left the final decision to President Joseph Kasavubu, now in Madagascar for a meeting of anti-Lumumbist leaders of the Congo. The Congolese army seized the ports last weekend in a clash with UN forces stationed there.

ANOTHER SIGN

Another sign of a thaw was a turnout of an honor guard when special UN representative Rajeshwar Dayal left Leopoldville for New York and a general assembly debate on the Congo. He is expected to return in about two weeks.

The Congolese turned out their smartest troops when Dayal and his interim replacement, Mekki Abbas of Sudan, called on the acting premier, Jacques Masisi. The UN command assumed the honors were for Dayal but the Congolese said the tribute was for Abbas.

UNDER ATTACK

Dayal has been under constant attack by the Congolese government for alleged favoritism to pro-Lumumba forces. Kasavubu has demanded his recall but Secretary Dag Hammarskjöld rejected the demand. Dayal said his final talks with Masisi were "very friendly."

Last Block Falls To Tax Increase

All obstacles to the three-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax melted away yesterday when third and final readings were given to the Act to Amend the Gasoline Tax.

There wasn't even any discussion as the bills were voted upon section by section, but Opposition leader Strachan called for a recorded vote. The tax was subject of a hot two-hour debate during second reading.

Cyril Sheford (SC—Opposition), as on second reading, was the lone government dissenter as he stood with all CCF and Liberal MLAs present.

The bill passed 26 to 19. All that is required for it to become law is for Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes to give royal assent the day the House prorogues.

Dentists See Child Plan

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian dentists are in favor of a proposed dental care plan for children but not for adults, in view of Canada's dentist shortage, Dr. James Whyte, president of the Canadian Dental Association, said Friday.

Health Care In '62

REGINA (CP) — The target date for introducing a provincial medical care plan still stands and it will be in operation "sometime in 1962," Premier T. C. Douglas said Friday in the legislature.

Target date to receive the medical care committee report and bring in legislation is set for 1961, the premier said. The medical care committee last month ended public hearings. Members now are studying state medicine plans in Europe and Australia and New Zealand.

The agreement was made without a vote. The pinpointing of a new trouble spot in Africa was opposed strenuously by Portuguese ambassador Vasco Garin, who contended that the UN had no right to concern itself with Angola, which the Lisbon government considers an integral part of its national territory.

U.S. ambassador Adlai Stevenson, council president for March, declared Liberia's complaint of human rights suppression in the territory adopted for debate. He did not ask for a vote after hearing objection only from Chile to putting the issue on the agenda.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A middle-aged man in search of a job yesterday discovered $240,000 in unmarked bills lying in the street, but didn't hesitate a moment before turning the cash over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The FBI quoted Douglas William Johnson as saying: "I thought if I kept that money, I'd never be able to look my three kids in the face again."

"And I'd do the same thing again," Johnson said, though it still wasn't certain whether he would receive a reward.

A bag containing the money tumbled through the open door of a Brinks armored car minutes after it was picked up at the United California Bank on a regular run.

Johnson, 50, and his wife, Helen, saw the bag lying in the street.

"I'm no richer, now than when I started out this morning," the Negro father of three children said.

Arms, Race Bias Conference Topics

LONDON (CP) — Disarmament and apartheid were the main talking points Friday night as the 10th post-war conference of Commonwealth prime ministers headed for a weekend break.

As the conference ended its third day, Prime Minister Diefenbaker drove to Chequers, Prime Minister Macmillan's country residence, for an overnight stay and preliminary talks with Macmillan on whether South Africa should remain within the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Sirmavo Bandaranaike, prime minister of Ceylon, was also among the guests at Chequers. Several other prime ministers were to go to Chequers during the weekend as a prelude to the decision on South African membership, expected Monday.

All signs so far pointed to a decision to keep South Africa within the family fold, despite strong feelings about apartheid, but there was always the possibility that harsh words from any quarter might cause an explosion.

Before going to Chequers, Diefenbaker received calls from strong opponents of apartheid. One was Bishop Ambrose Reeves of Johannesburg, outspoken critic of racial segregation.

Cut Bombast On Africa John D Told

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Socialist leader Hazen Argue said last night Prime Minister John Diefenbaker should "cut out the bombast" and state flatly that Canada opposes the re-entry of South Africa to the Commonwealth. He said Diefenbaker was "cheapening the name of Canada" by talking about a Commonwealth bill of rights at the same time as he searches for a compromise to keep South Africa in the Commonwealth.

666,666 Baths Set for Today

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The Copacabana sections of Rio de Janeiro at 7 a.m. The flow was cut off after an hour. The water came with the return to operation of two pumps that had been flooded and knocked out March 1 due to neglect of night guards who slept when they should have been closing flood gates.

Public hearing by Victoria Police Commission in the case of a city constable accused of over-zealousness in the arrest last month of a young Chinese will reopen Monday at 2 p.m. at city police headquarters. At an earlier hearing, the commission held that the officer had acted within his authority.

By PETER BRUTON

The legislature yesterday gave unanimous approval to an act which gives the government authority to pay the Pacific Great Eastern Railway an operating grant of up to $5,000,000 from tax revenues.

The government-owned railway lost $2,900,000 last year. But Premier Bennett, who doubles as president of the government-owned railroad, dodged opposition questions about a company which owes the PGE $100,000.

ELIASE GUNDERSON

It was stated this company, the W. L. Laird Distributors Limited, Vancouver, had as a director a partner of PGE executive vice-president Eliase Gunderson.

"It appears a scoundrel has permitted the railroad to advance him $100,000 of railroad money and that the scoundrel has now disappeared," said Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

One of the directors of this company was Michael J. Walton, a partner in Mr. Gunderson's accounting business.

INCREASED DEBT

The company increased its debt to the railroad from $29,000 in 1955 to $100,000 this year and the PGE is taking legal action in an attempt to get its money.

"This company owes the people of B.C. $100,000," said Mr. Gargrave. "If we had that the railroad's loss would not be as great."

He demanded to know from Premier Bennett the results of an RCMP investigation into the firm.

SHAREHOLDER

But Premier Bennett dodged the issue.

He apologized for inferring previously that North Vancouver Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson had been a shareholder in the Laird company but
